Nixon-psychological

NOV 30 1973

Dr. William Schutz (15 years Harvard, Univ. Cal., Tufts, Einstein, Chicago, WPost 11/25/73)

"Look at Nixon's shoulders, the way they hunch up. Now that's fear reaction. Ever see a child who's afraid of getting hit or something? He did something wrong and he's expecting to get punished? He scrunches up his shoulders and holds his breath. You do that enough, after a while your shoulders will actually grow that way. You can see at a glance that fear is a basic part of Nixon's personality, and very likely he'll be susceptible to respiratory diseases, like viral pneumonia."
