

A Kissinger Sound-Alike

VIP

By Maxine Cheshire

The German accent sounds enough like Secretary of State Henry Kissinger to fool former Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir on a transatlantic telephone call.

"Negotiation is the key . . ." intones the instantly recognizable voice that has been selling cars for Mid-City Chevy and Olds on television and radio in the Washington area for the past two weeks. Leave your camels at home . . ."

The Kissinger mimic is not David Frye, nor anyone in show business. The imitator is Frank Silbey, staff assistant to Rep. John Moss (D-Calif.).

Silbey was paid $300 for the 60-second spots which have been running on WTOP and a half-dozen other stations locally.

He does Sen. Edward M. Kennedy so convincingly that he once called Sen. John Tunney's office as a gag and was put through immediately by a secretary who assumed she recognized the voice.

Embarrassed at getting Tunney in person, Silbey hurriedly gulped his way through a harmless conversation without ever admitting the deception.

Silbey is now cutting a record of political satire of the kind that made Vaughn Meador a millionaire during the days of the New Frontier.

Joining the Crusade?

Julie Nixon Eisenhower's car, followed by another with Secret Service agents, has been spotted on several occasions recently, parked outside a house on Pomander Walk in the fashionable Old Town section of Alexandria.

After several inquiries, Mrs. Eisenhower disclosed that she has joined a Bible study group which meets weekly in the home of Mrs. George Page. Mrs. Page is affiliated with the national Campus Crusade for Christ.

Mrs. Eisenhower was there last week and the week before, according to a White House aide, who added that several congressmen's wives also are active in the study group."
