David, Julie Moving to Manhattan

New York

David Eisenhower and his wife, the former Julie Nixon, are planning to take up residence in Manhattan.

The couple leased a two-bedroom Upper East Side apartment overlooking the East river and are scheduled to move from Washington about May 15.

Eisenhower, the grandson of the late President Dwight Eisenhower, is to be graduated soon from the School of Law at Georgetown University. He has had job offers from law firms here.

He and the daughter of former President Richard Nixon were married in 1968. At their new address they will be neighbors of Julie's sister, Tricia, whose husband, Edward Cox, is a lawyer with a New York firm.

The Eisenhowers' new home is in the 34-story Pavilion apartment building, an 850-unit structure with unusually tight security. Two bedroom apartments rent for $675 to $850 a month, depending on what floor they are on and the view.
