Freed last October after spending more than two years as a prisoner of the Vietcong, Staff Sgt. John Sexton Jr. is about to be discharged from the Army. Sergeant Sexton, who is 23 years old, has been under treatment in Fitzsimmons Army Hospital in Denver, and after his release from the Army may undergo operations for an eye injury and a fused elbow at a Veterans Administration Hospital near his home in Warren, Mich. An Army spokesman said he would be entitled to "substantial" disability payments.
