Kissinger Leaves Paris

WASHINGTON (AP)—Henry A. Kissinger left Paris today to return to the White House to report on his latest peace talks with the North Vietnamese, a White House spokesman said.

White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler declined comment on the contents of the talks which have renewed speculation that a negotiated end to the U.S. role in the Vietnam war is in sight.

"Of course the President has received ongoing reports day by day," Ziegler said. "He will receive an oral report (from Kissinger) tonight."

Ziegler announced a breakfast meeting for further discussion has been scheduled for Friday morning with President Nixon, Kissinger, and Secretary of State William P. Rogers.

Ziegler announced Kissinger's departure from Paris minutes before Nixon left the White House on a brief campaign trip to Atlanta, Ga.

The sessions with Kissinger have been held in the strictest secrecy.

He spent Wednesday night in Paris, which had not been planned. There was speculation he would meet with French officials on the reported bombing by U.S. planes of the French diplomatic mission in Hanoi.

But a White House spokesman said he could not comment on the reason for Kissinger's delayed departure from Paris.

The latest negotiations were the 19th round in the secret Paris talks between Kissinger and the North Vietnamese, and the first time the talks have extended beyond two days.
