From story on Kissinger by Robert C. Toth, Los Angeles Times:

.....

These are petty criticisms but added to a foolish interview he gave a sensationalist Italian writer, they created an atmosphere which fostered speculative stories of a split between Kissinger and the President after the Vietnam settlement threatened to unravel in October.

But he is too clever to allow any light to show between his and the President's positions. And he is too principled - and if not that, then too anxious for a statesman's place in history - to have blatantly lied about the nearness of peace a week before the election.
