Nixon Cool To Meeting Thieu Aide

SF Examiner

WASHINGTON — (AP) — President Nixon is expected to refuse to meet personally with a special representative of South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu to discuss Thieu's concern over the current drive for an Indochina peace, administration sources said today.

Thieu is said to have offered to send a personal envoy to Washington so Nixon would have a direct line on the Saigon assessment of the peace talks going on in Paris between presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger and Le Duc Tho, North Vietnam's chief negotiator.

Attack on Kissinger

However, administration sources say Nixon prefers to keep his contacts with Saigon limited to the embassy level or to trips to Saigon by Kissinger and other U.S. aides.

The report of Nixon's dim view concerning a special Saigon envoy follows a strong attack on Kissinger carried earlier this week over the official Saigon radio station.

The broadcast, as monitored in Washington, said Hanoi was elated over the prospects of signing a tentative agreement reached last month because the proposed accord favored North Vietnam.

"However," the broadcast said, "we must further understand that the aggressor's elation was hardly caused . . . by the mistakes of the U.S. negotiators."

Quoting several unnamed newspapers, the broadcast said Kissinger had been deceived by the Communists and "was too confident in the adversary's good will in accepting the agreement."

Calling this an error on Kissinger's part, the broadcast again quoted newspapers as saying Kissinger "completely went against the commitments and statements of principle by President Nixon since 1969, according to which the United States would never for any reason have the right to sacrifice the future of the RVN (Republic of Vietnam) and rob the RVN people of their right to self-determination."

Pointing to the Oct. 26 news conference Kissinger had called to discuss disclosure by North Vietnam of a tentative nine-point peace agreement, the Saigon broadcast said Kissinger perhaps "had overplayed his role as an assistant to the U.S. President."

The broadcast also said that "one had the impression that Mr. Kissinger took one or two steps beyond his power to the point of overlapping that of the President whom he is serving.

"He hurt the U.S. President's prestige with regard to his pledge to respect the South Vietnamese people's right of self determination."

At another point the broadcast said "one has good reason to believe that the time has come for Mr. Kissinger to gain some wisdom by abstaining from too conspicuously airing his ambition to create a legend for himself."
