

Henry Didn't Play Santa--Again

By Maxine Cheshire

WASHINGTON — Youngsters at Childrens Hospital sent Foreign Affairs advisor Henry Kissinger a wire in Paris last week, reminding him that he had promised to don a red suit and white whiskers and play Santa Claus for them this year.

He had made the commitment after being unable to play the role last Christmas, when Martha Mitchell took his place.

With the date for his appearance approaching, the young patients wired Kissinger a reminder with a P.S. saying that "For Our Christmas Gift, We Would Like Peace."

It's doubtful the message ever reached Kissinger. At any rate, when there was no reply, John Banner of Hogan's Heroes, flew in from California as a hurry-up substitute.
