POWs' Treatment

Editor — The returning POWs have reason to be grateful — not only to their government, but to their captors as well. Compare their mental and physical health with that of General Skinny Wainwright and his men, or with that of the graduates of Thieu's tiger cages (the recent rebuilding of which has been stimulated by a Pentagon outlay of several hundred thousand dollars).

Hanoi's tender care may have been politically motivated, but one could do worse in the name of politics.

Makes One Pause

Editor — I note with interest and a certain amount of pride that none of the POW's released and quoted to date have espoused or adopted the philosophy of the liberals led by Jane Fonda and her ilk, who preached censure of the United States and exalted the Communists.

It's sort of enough to make one stand up when the flag goes by, isn't it?
