80 More POWs Back in the U.S.

Washington

Eighty more freed prisoners of war arrived back home today taking an express route that brought them to military bases across the country and reunions with their loved ones.

Four huge jets traveled up to 11,000 miles from Clark Air Base in the Philippines to carry their passengers, to bases in Maryland, Texas,

California and Illinois.

At each of the bases, the former POWs expressed thanks at being once again on American soil and gratitude to President Nixon for having engineered the peace.

Four other flights left Clark today to bring home the remaining 56 freed prisoners still in the Philippines.
