PARIS, May 1—North Vietnamese and United States negotiators returned home today with the American threatening resumption of United States military action in Vietnam if violations of the cease-fire continued and Hanoi's representative ruling out a meeting soon between Henry A. Kissinger and Le Duc Tho.

"Hanoi will soon have to make its choice and decide whether it wants full implementation of the accords in good faith or if it prefers to take the path which would take us to the unfortunate military situation to which we hoped to put an end by signing the agreement," said William H. Sullivan, Deputy Assistant Secretary of State for East Asia and Pacific Affairs, after his talks here with Nguyen Co Thach, Deputy Foreign Minister of North Vietnam, on violations of the cease-fire.

Accusation by Hanoi

Mr. Thach, in a statement before his departure for Hanoi, referred to the United States' suspension of its minesweeping of North Vietnamese waters and its renewal of reconnaissance flights over North Vietnam as violations of the Paris agreement.

Asked whether he expected a change in the American attitude, he said: "We think the Americans should be more realistic, but this depends on them. For our part, we are doing everything to carry out the agreements, but the Saigon Government did everything to prevent them being signed and now is doing all it can to torpedo them."

Mr. Sullivan and Mr. Thach held three meetings here to review the cease-fire situation in Vietnam. Sources at the White House said last week that the meetings would be a prelude to another meeting between Mr.

Kissinger, the national security adviser to President Nixon, and Le Duc Tho, the North Vietnamese Politburo member with whom he negotiated the cease-fire agreement.

Commenting on the current situation, Mr. Sullivan said: "We have published a note revealing the violations which have been committed. We have indicated that we wish the accords to be faithfully carried out. We have spoken frankly and without emotion on these subjects during the past few days. I think that Hanoi knows what is expected of it."

U.S. 'Absolutely Unsatisfied'

Asked if further conversations would be held under the threat of new United States bombing of North Vietnam, Mr. Sullivan said:

"We don't think the talks will be held in an atmosphere of threat. On the other hand, we are absolutely unsatisfied by the way the North Vietnamese and the forces under their control are conducting themselves and the way in which they have implemented the accords."

Mr. Thach, as he boarded a plane for Moscow on his way to Hanoi, told newsmen: "The atmosphere is not favorable at present for talks between the advisers of President Nixon and of the Hanoi Government, Mr. Kissinger and Mr. Tho."

He called on the United States to resume clearance of its mines from North Vietnamese waters, to resume the interrupted talks on American aid to North Vietnam and to end its reconnaissance flights over North Vietnam.

Mr. Thach was accompanied on his return trip by North Vietnam's Finance Minister, Dang Viet Chau. Mr. Chau had been in Paris for the aid talks with Maurice Williams, deputy administrator of the United States Agency for International Development, and his departure was considered an indication that the aid talks would not be resumed soon.

President Nixon suspended the aid talks and the minesweeping on April 19, accusing North Vietnam of large-scale movement of troops and supplies into South Vietnam in violation of the cease-fire. North Vietnam said the interruption in the talks and of the minesweeping were violations of the cease-fire agreement.

Mr. Thach and Mr. Sullivan met more than 12 hours on Friday, Sunday and yesterday. Spokesmen said they reviewed every aspect of the peace agreement, but gave no details of their talks.
