

The Grand Jury

by Anthony Lewis

..... Grand juries have very great power to compel testimony; they can even grant personal immunity from prosecution, as this one did for Professor [Samuel L.] Popkin. If prosecutors use a grand jury for general inquiries into the opinions and sources of scholars or others, the effect could be as intimidating as the worst Congressional investigations of the 1950's.