

Story on attacks by Washington-based organization called Accuracy in Media (AIM) on David Brinkley "for likening the U.S. to 19th century Prussia because it spent about two-thirds of 'regular tax income' for military purposes," and on Anthony Lewis, and a future criticism of Tom Wicker.

Organization's executive secretary is Abraham Kalish, former feature writer for the U.S. Information Agency.