

Jackson's Father Calls For Probe

Pasadena

The father of George Jackson said yesterday he's started a nationwide effort to enlist support from black Americans for a probe into his son's death.

"We want to investigate the conflicting stories coming out of San Quentin," Lester Jackson Jr., 50, said in an interview from his home here. "So far, we really only have their (prison officials) story.

"We've started a signature campaign for an investigation because Governor Ronald Reagan won't do anything," the elder Jackson said.
