Inmates Tortured, Lawyers Insist

Six attorneys who visited prison's adjustment center persisted yesterday in claiming inmates were beaten and being subjected to psychological torture by guards.

Three newsmen, including The Examiner's Stephen Cook, toured the center yesterday and reported they saw only minor injuries among inmates.

They produced no evidence, saying the 30-minute visits with their clients were little more than social visits because of guards standing within hearing distance.

"You're not going to ask urday's incident until you can talk privately with your times with possible murder charges involved," said Silli-

Earlier, the Soledad Brothers' lawyers filed a petition for a writ of habeas corpus in the State Court of Appeal requesting that Drumgo and Clutchette be removed from San Quentin to county jail here during their trial.

A similar motion earlier this week that the two defendants be transferred to federal prison pending the trial was turned down in U.S. District Court.
