Mark Schwartz reports from San Francisco on trial of John Clutchette and Fleeta Drungo. Following excerpt is from his account of remarks by Judge S. Lee Vavuris in reply to objections by Floyd Silliman, Clutchette's lawyer, on the use of a helicopter to transport Clutchette and Drungo from San Quentin to San Francisco.

..... Judge Vavuris said that as time goes on "the defendants will grow to understand, appreciate and accept it. Imagine - they'll be able to see the panoramic vistas of San Francisco and the Bay Area every day. That costs other people money."
