Bangkok Fortune Of Silk Industrialist Is Left to Nephew

Special to The New York Times BANGKOK, Thailand, March 20-The will of James Thompson, the Bangkok silk tycoon who disappeared in March, 1967 while on a holiday in Malaysia; was found this week in the office of the Thai Silk Company, was found this week in the of-fice of the Thai Silk Company, which he started in 1948. The will, signed and wit-nessed on Aug. 13, 1964, was found among some old archi-tectural drawings of Mr. Thomp-son's house in Bangkok. It re-vokes all previous wills and makes his nephew, a New York broker, Henry B. Thompson, the sole heir. An executive of the Thai Silk Company said that the validity of the will had been certified by the United States Embassy in Bangkok. The loss of the Thompson will had created a legal prob-lem over the disposal of his famous house here and its an-tiques, valued at $200,000. Under a previous will he left the heure and constructed tiques, valued at $200,000. Under a previous will he left the house and contents to the Siam Society, a learned body under the patronage of the King of Thailand. He was known to have changed his mind in 1964 after the Thai Fine Arts De-partment confiscated some of his antique Buddha images on the ground that they were na-tional treasures. After his disappearance the

After his disappearance the new will could not be found, while the old one remained in the possession of the Siam So-ciety. Last summer the society and Henry B. Thompson lodged claims with the civil court here to administer the estate. The court advised the parties to reach a compromise. The advice was taken and reach a compromise. The advice was taken and Henry Thompson and the Siam Society agreed that representa-tives of the family and of the society should administer the estate jointly. The house was to be kept open to the public, as in James Thompson's life, with visitors' donations continu-ing to go for charity. The in-come from James Thompson's shares in the Thai Silk Com-pany would be used to maintain the house and grounds.
