Takes Healthy Look at Brezhnev

By Jack Anderson and Les Whitten

Smoking used to leave Leonid Brezhnev with such a sore mouth that he had to have his gums massaged every day by his doctor. The pain compelled the Soviet leader to give up ciga-

Brezhnev's dental secrets, it seems, are fully known to the Central Intelligence Agency. the fascinating details (smoking apparently caused the blood vessels in his gums to constrict, thus producing the pain) are on file in the CIA's "LSD Office.

This office has nothing to do, we hasten to add, with the controversial drug that the CIA has fed to unsuspecting victims. In this case, the initials stand for "Life Sciences Division." Its specialists collect and analyze intelligence on the health of world leaders.

For all their intimate knowledge about the state of Brezhnev's gums, however, the specialists have not been able to pin down the truth about his health. His file is fat with rumors about his ailments, but the facts have been elusive.

The Kremlin kingpin shows symptoms, apparently, of having been treated with cortisone. This is a hormone used to combat any number of ailments, including leukemia, arthritis, rheumatic fever, gout and itch-

Brezhnev could be afflicted, therefore, with anything from terminal cancer to the seven-year itch. In the flesh, he appears fit. But some intelligence analysts, going out on a limb,

Only three facts have been ting smoking. established: Brezhnev suffers Secret Acco from hangovers, he has a queasy stomach, and he is plagued with horrendous dental problems. Brezhnev's fondness for vodka has been known for years to the CIA, which has established that he sometimes shows up in the Kremlin the worse for the past column. Here are the secret asnight's partying.

To relieve his woes on these occasions, he likes to stop off at a health spa near a corner of the Kremlin, a spot the Soviet hierarchy calls the "clinic." There, he may take a steam bath or get a rubdown from a favorite masseuse.

The CIA triumphantly established that Brezhnev had a queasy stomach during his 1973 flight to the United States. Sources aboard the Brezhnev plane reported that the Soviet leader made a desperate dash for the washroom with every downdraft.

Although the CIA has reliable information about Brezhnev's bad gums, the experts have been unable to fix the cause. "If he had had good American dental care all his life," suggested one intelligence analyst, "he probably wouldn't have this trouble."

frouble."
Our dental experts tell us that ments from callousing of the terest in Teamster loans. gums to leukoplakia, a condi-tion characterized by lesions that could become cancerous.

Or maybe, suggested one au-have predicted his health soon rious and Brezhnev's doctors will force him to retire.

Secret Accords - In negotiating the historic Israeli-Egyptian agreement, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger made secret pledges not only to Israel but to Egypt. We published the secret ac-cords with Israel in an earlier surances Kissinger gave the Egyptians:

"The United States intends to make a serious effort," it was stipulated, to help bring about further negotiations between Syria and Israel, in the first inthrough diplomatic stance channels.

"In the event of an Israeli violation of the agreement, the United States is prepared to consult with Egypt as to the sigficance of the violation and possible remedial action by the United States.

"The United States will provide technical assistance to Egypt for the Egyptian early warning station."

Teamsters Investigation The federal government is less interested in what happened to James R. Hoffa than in what has happened to the Teamsters' pension and welfare funds. It is Brezhnev's aching mouth could believed that mobsters elimimean he has any of a host of ail- nated Hoffa to protect their in-

The Teamsters have an estimated $1.5 billion in assets, which are supposed to provide retirement benefits for 400,000 union members. But there have been reports that mobsters have obtained a hold on the purse strings. The Justice and Labor departments would like to untangle the strings. But it would take more auditors than are available.

Nuclear Accident? — Rep. James H. Scheuer (D-N.Y.) is worried about the shipment of lethal enriched uranium through heavily populated New York City to Kennedy Interna tional Airport. An accident, of course, would be disastrous.

On at least one occasion, the Nuclear Regulatory Commis-sion neglected to tell the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy, as it was supposed to do, about a 100-pound cargo until it had been shipped. Scheuer, there-fore, will attempt to tighten the laws that govern the handling of. nuclear materials.

91975, United Feature Syndicate, Inc.