

Report of Spying By Chicago Cops

Chicago

Chicago police intelligence agents have dossiers on hundreds of citizens, including the president of the University of Notre Dame and the Republican state's attorney of Cook county, the Chicago Daily News reported yesterday.

In a copyrighted story, the paper said the only common thread connecting those allegedly spied-on is their opposition at one time or another to the policies of Mayor Richard J. Daley or the police.

Daley was not available for comment and a spokesman in the mayor's office said he did not know if Daley would have a statement.

The paper said dossiers also are kept on numerous organizations in addition to the five community groups which the police admitted infiltrating on Thursday.

The Daily News listed as individuals whose activities are contained in secret dossiers the Rev. Theodore Hesburg, president of Notre Dame; state's Attorney Bernard Carey; Barnabas F. Sears, the special prosecutor in the trial of policemen acquitted in connection with a 1969 raid in which two Black Panther leaders were killed; and state Senator Richard Newhouse, one of three Democrats who opposed Daley in the February mayoral primary election.

Carey has ordered a grand jury investigation of the police activities.

The Daily News revealed on Thursday that the police successfully infiltrated five community groups. Later, the police admitted the clandestine activities of undercover agents.
