Dita Beard - Staff members of Ervin committee and special investigations subcommittee of House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee are looking into reports that Dita Beard's hospital room in Denver was bugged during the time when members of Senate Judiciary Committee visited her in Mar 72 to question her, in connection with their consideration of Kleindienst nomination to be attorney general. Two staff members of the special investigations subcommittee met in Denver 2 Oct with Robert E. Wilkinson, a Denver private detective and "purportedly a key figure in the alleged bugging. Meeting reportedly lasted only about five minutes and "did not get into the substance of the bugging allegation." No further details, but apparently the investigators did not want to question him without his lawyer being present, since Wilkinson is currently under indictment on charges of illegal wiretapping and eavesdropping in two Colorado counties. "Wilkinson and his lawyer told[WXP]they could state 'affirmatively' that Wilkinson had information relating to the alleged bugging attempt, but would not elaborate." (See entry 26 Oct.)

Nixon mood - From story by Apple: "The man who stood before the White House press corps this morning seemed like the Richard M. Nixon of early 1972 - the Nixon whose voice didn't quaver, the Nixon who dealt confidently with a wide range of questions, the Nixon who clearly felt on top of his job, the Nixon who could even manage a bit of humor. The President was obviously nettled only once when he was

Nixon/taxes - Providence Journal Bulletin says Nixon paid taxes of $792.81 in 1970 and $878.03 in 1971, equivalent to the taxes paid by a wage earner with one exemption in the $7,000 income bracket; says information on which it based its story came from "documents provided by government sources." WH*refuses to confirm or deny the facts in the story; Nixon tax lawyer DeMarco refers inquiries to WH counsel's office, which does not respond to repeated calls;
