- Sampson countersigns the "agreement" 7 Sep.

"Philip W. Buchen, counsel for President Ford, said at a White House briefing [8 Sep] that Mr. Ford instructed him about 10 days ago to resolve the controversy over the White House files so the Administration would not find itself 'enmeshed for a long time' in jurisdictional disputes."

"Although Mr. Buchen denied that the agreement was a condition for granting a Presidential pardon to Mr. Nixon, he said the agreement had been worked out by Benton L. Becker, a Washington lawyer acting as a liaison man, at the same time Mr. Becker informed the former President of the pardon plans. [See entry 8 Sep 74, Pardon (discussion).]"

"In general, the agreement upholds Mr. Nixon's right to the documents - a right reiterated in an accompanying legal opinion from Attorney General William B. Saxbe ... "
