Nixon (illness) - "At a private conference in [Judge Sirica's] chambers recently, *Nixon's chief Washington lawyer, Herbert J. Miller Jr., told Sirica that [Nixon] was just about to be released from the hospital. 'They can't do anything more for him there,' Miller reportedly added."

Miller - See Nixon, illness.

Korff says his organization, the President Nixon Justice Fund, has paid out $60,000 for ~~legal~~ Nixon's legal fees, and intends to pay Nixon's medical bills as well. Says legal bills are being submitted directly to the fund by Miller. "I have an understanding with Mr. Nixon. I get the bills and I pay them." He estimates the legal fees and medical expenses probably will total between $400,000 and $500,000, with about 80 per cent of that figure going for legal expenses; as of 1 Nov the fund still owed Nixon's lawyers $120,000 and had no more than about $5,000 in the bank by the middle of the month.

Story is based on "a recent interview" (no date). "In contrast to last summer when the telephone was always ringing and Korff was granting interviews like a rock star newly-arrived in town, the phone rang just once during [the] hour-and-one-half interview and he was not interrupted by visitors." Korff is the head of three committees:

National Citizens Committee for Fairness to the Presidency;
President Nixon Justice Committee;
United States Citizens' Congress.
