

The Major Events of the Day

International

Lebanese Moslems and their leftist allies appeared to be moving reluctantly toward acceptance of a temporary truce in the civil war in response to Syrian and other pressure. Kamal Jumblat, the Moslem Druse leader who heads the Progressive Socialist Party and is also titular leader of the Moslem-leftist alliance, said he was not opposed to the principle of a truce. [Page 1, Col. 8.]

In Washington, King Hussein of Jordan reportedly told members of Congress that probably only Syrian military intervention could restore order in Lebanon. He was apparently asking the United States to persuade Israel not to follow suit if Syria took this action. [1:6-7.]

The White House and State Department announced that the United States and the Soviet Union expect to complete within the next several weeks a pact limiting both peaceful and military nuclear explosions to a maximum of 150 kilotons. Meanwhile, neither is expected to test any more nuclear devices above this range. [6:1-2.]

West Germany has abandoned a project to build a $600 million nuclear power plant for the Soviet Union in Kaliningrad on the Baltic Sea. This was announced in Bonn after a last round of negotiations with Soviet officials in Moscow failed because of disagreement on economic terms, the German Minister of Economics said. [1:6-8.]

National

The problems of older American cities have played a lesser role in this year's Presidential campaign than they did after the urban riots of the mid-1960's. Although prominent in debate in the New York Democratic primary next Tuesday, there are few signs that the cities' problems will be a major issue in the rest of the campaign. [1:6-7.]

Ronald Reagan appealed for popular support in a half-hour television address that seemed aimed at attracting fresh financial backing from Democrats and independents, as well as Republicans. It listed domestic ills and foreign troubles and asked America to return to greatness. President Ford's new campaign manager, Rogers C. B. Morton, said most Republican voters had already repudiated the challenger's views. [1:5.]

The president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Frank E. Fitzsimmons, told union delegates to go out on strike unless contract negotiations in Arlington Heights, Ill., reached a settlement by midnight last night. [1:2-3.]

Solicitor General Robert H. Bork, arguing for the Government, urged the Supreme Court to overrule its 1972 decision against capital punishment as then practiced in America and to hold that the death penalty is constitutional. He was questioned with unusual bluntness by three Justices on the second day of the Court's re-examination of the question. [1:4.]

Metropolitan

The Transit Authority obtained an injunction in State Supreme Court to bar an illegal walkout by the Transport Workers Union as negotiations continued. One mediator said he would not be surprised if the union agreed to extend its deadline past midnight if progress was being made. The issues of productivity and money for cost-of-living increases from within the authority's budget continued to stall negotiations, according to the mediator. [1:1.]

The Republican majority in the State Senate, incensed at Governor Carey's surprise veto of the formulas for education assistance in the budget, were preparing to attempt to override it, but the Democrats in the Senate said they would unite to defeat the move. Warren M. Anderson, the Senate majority leader, said Mr. Carey had gone back on an explicit promise. [1:2.]

In the State Assembly, a vote overriding Governor Carey's veto of the Stavisky bill to restore $150 million to the city's schools was expected. But the lineup in the Senate indicated that it would not vote to override, apparently because Senator Anderson was determined to withhold Republican votes in retaliation for Democratic refusal to back the override vote he was seeking. [1:3.]

A special state commission studying the financial collapse of the Urban Development Corporation has recommended major changes in the way New York state borrows money and manages its debt to end what the chairman called abuses of the state's credit. [1:1.]

The New Jersey Supreme Court ruled unanimously that the mechanical respirator keeping Karen Anne Quinlan alive might be disconnected if her attending physicians and a panel of hospital officials saw no reasonable possibility that she would recover. She has been in a coma for almost a year. [1:2-5.]

The Other News

International

Videla reassures Argentines on rights. Page 2
Argentina and Chile took the same path. Page 3
Rhodesian issues on an evening out. Page 4
Bonn legislator testifies in Congress on arms. Page 7
Greece concerned about U.S.-Turkey accord. Page 8
Rabin says Communists incited Arab riots. Page 15

Government and Politics

Jackson rivals attack his stand on Lebanon. Page 20
Carter took free rides on business planes. Page 20
Udall handles hot issues with humor. Page 21
Humphrey looms in New York primary. Page 22
House nears completion of campaign bill. Page 22
House Democrats seek outlays for jobs. Page 34

General

Metropolitan Briefs. Page 35
First families chosen for rent subsidies. Page 35
Carry hopes new lottery will start in 8 weeks. Page 35
Unemployment dips in city and state. Page 35
Two-hundred laid-off police officers rehired. Page 35
Sohlah robbery trial begins on West Coast. Page 37
Court papers explain Miss Hearst's defense. Page 37

Industry and Labor

Alternate transit in event of strike. Page 23
San Francisco municipal workers on strike. Page 57

Health and Science

Village nursing home gets a new chance. Page 24
Stein says owners of home victimize managers. Page 24
Expansion of immunization plan is urged. Page 38
Tests planned on preventing breast cancer. Page 59

Amusements and the Arts

U.S. art at Yale destined for London. Page 26
Sitar dazazles in rich Kathak dances. Page 26
The Pop Life. Page 28

Quotation of the Day

"We have no doubt, in these unhappy circumstances, that if Karen were herself miraculously lucid for an interval and perceptive of her irreversible condition, she could effectively decide upon discontinuance of the life-support apparatus, even if it meant the prospect of natural death."—The New Jersey Supreme Court in a ruling that Karen Ann Quinlan's parents could let her die if doctors saw no recovery hope. [24:1.]

"Not a Pretty Picture" re-enacts rape. Page 28
Baltimore Opera gives "Ines de Castro." Page 28
Shanet conducts program of string pieces. Page 28
Scherman's "Daughter of Fire" reviewed. Page 29
"Helter Skelter" about Manson case, on TV. Page 59

Going Out Guide

Family/Style Page 26
Palm Beach tennis court becomes ballroom. Page 36
An indoor playground has no swings. Page 36

Obituaries

Carl Doering, linked cancer and heavy smoking. Page 34

Business and Financial

Dow up by 7.32 after two-day drop. Page 43
Cornal takes over Northeast system. Page 43
S.E.C. has added M.A.C. to its investigation. Page 43
Investing abroad by U.S. companies lagging. Page 43
Ford names 10 to payments review board. Page 43
Amex uncovers irregularities in options trading. Page 43
Farm prices down 1.5 percent in month. Page 43
Geico lays some problems to own incompetence. Page 43

Advertising News	49	Grains	51
Amer. Exchange	51	Market Indicators	44
Bond Sales	50	Market Place	44
Business Briefs	48	Money	44
Business Records	44	Natural Funds	52
Commodities	51	N.Y. Stock Exch.	44
Dividends	44	001-67-Town	53
Foreign Exchange	51	Over the Counter	52
Page 1

Donovan gives views on why Knicks folded. Page 39
Islanders vs. Rangers: Tale of contrasts. Page 39
Buccaneers go far off course in draft. Page 39
Martin and Hernandez prove winning team. Page 41
Misses Barker and Casals score in tennis. Page 41

Notes on People Page 37
Man in the News
Jose Martinez de Hoz, Argentina's planner. Page 2

Editorials and Comment
Editorials and Letters. Page 32
Anthony Lewis appraises reaction to Carter. Page 33
William Safire on the Seminarian mystique. Page 33
I. F. Stone: What was in the pumpkin papers? Page 33

News Analysis
Damon Stetson reviews city transit bargaining. Page 23
Les Brown discusses the Daniel Schorr case. Page 58

CORRECTIONS

In an item in the Notes on People column in The New York Times yesterday, former Gov. Chester Bowles of Connecticut was erroneously described as "the late Chester Bowles."

An article on rent control in The Times yesterday stated incorrectly that persons 65 years old or older whose net income did not exceed $6,500 a year and who spent at least one-third of their income for rent were exempted by law from rent increases. The correct age is 62 years or older.