

News Summary and Index

NYTimes WEDNESDAY, APRIL 7, 1976 APR 7 1976

The Major Events of the Day

International
Britain's anti-inflationary course was confirmed by the new Prime Minister, James Callaghan, in the new budget aimed at reviving mills and factories. Public services and social welfare yielded their priority. Mr. Callaghan said the 30-year industrial decline must be reversed. The budget, presented by Chancellor of the Exchequer Denis Healey, projected a deficit of $12.56 billion. It offered new incentives to business, and tax concessions to the public. The concessions are conditional on union acceptance of severe limitations on future wage increases. [Page 1, Columns 1-2.]

Trucks carrying thousands of people, most of them apparently militiamen, rolled through Peking as Chinese officials seemed to be preparing for the possibility of further violence. Another sign of concern was a front-page editorial in the Communist Party newspaper warning against further protests like those on Monday which included beatings, arson and an attempt to storm the Great Hall of the People. [1:3.]

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger has asserted that if Communist governments were elected in Western Europe the Atlantic alliance would be smashed and the United States isolated, according to a summary of his remarks to a meeting of American ambassadors in December. This summary obtained by The New York Times has also reached Senator James L. Buckley and, through him, other members of Congress. The original intent of the disclosure by some unknown official was apparently to provide ammunition for conservative politicians against Mr. Kissinger and ultimately against President Ford. [1:1-2.]

National

Representative Morris K. Udall and Jimmy Carter appeared to be running dead even in early voting in the Wisconsin Democratic primary, while President Ford seemed to be leading Ronald Reagan in the Republican Presidential contest. A New York Times/CBS News survey of early voters showed the Arizona Congressman and the former governor of Georgia each had more than a third of the total. Both Governor George C. Wallace of Alabama and Senator Henry M. Jackson of Washington were far behind the other two Democrats in the contest. [1:8.]

The Other News

Senator Jackson appeared to take an early lead among New York Democrats, according to preliminary surveys of voters before the polls closed. Representative Udall appeared to be running a solid second. The New York Times/CBS News poll of 20 key precincts throughout the state was based on voter preference rather than the actual delegate count at stake. [1:5-7.]

President Ford vetoed legislation to give the states $125 million to finance the upgrading of day-care facilities. He said it would impose burdensome Federal restrictions. The ability of Congress to override this veto is uncertain, and the House will not attempt it before the Easter recess. [1:4.]

Mr. Carter said in South Bend, Ind., that the Federal Government should not take the initiative to change the "ethnic purity" of some urban neighborhoods or the economic "homogeneity" of well-to-do suburbs. If elected President, he said, he would not deliberately circumvent the "natural inclination of people to live in ethnically homogeneous neighborhoods." [1:7.]

Metropolitan

William F. Hyland, State Attorney General of New Jersey, said he would not appeal the State Supreme Court's unanimous ruling authorizing the family of Karen Anne Quinlan to remove the respirator that has kept the comatose young woman alive for almost a year. There is still a possibility of appeals to the United States Supreme Court by St. Clare's Hospital in Denville or on behalf of her attending physicians. [1:5-6.]

Quotation of the Day

"It is necessary to stop the class enemies from spreading rumors, creating disturbances, stirring up the masses to fight one another, sabotaging the revolution and disrupting production."—Jemmin Jih Pao, the Chinese Communist Party newspaper. [1:3.]

Going Out Guide Page 28
About New York Page 22
Family/Style/Food Day
Chef makes his garden grow into works of art. Page 46
Saint Laurent and Kenzo are hailed. Page 46
Alexis Lichine is back in the wine business. Page 47
Consumer Notes Page 20
Obituaries
Harry Nyquist, invented communications aids. Page 36
Lester R. Bachner, a really lawyer. Page 36

Business and Financial
Stock market weakens on profit taking. Page 49
Banks and investment firms snub state bonds. Page 49
S.E.C. plans guidelines for disclosing bribes. Page 49
Hughes's Summa Corp. is run by small staff. Page 49
Saudi Arabia is widening world holdings. Page 49
About Real Estate: Lexington Ave. holdouts. Page 59

Education and Welfare
School-financing suit goes to trial April 21. Page 31
Health and Science
Personality linked to effect on stress in tests. Page 32
Amusements and the Arts
At Stratford, all's well that ends well. Page 24
Bad Company, British rock band performs. Page 24
Gilhooly's "Last Christians" is staged. Page 27
At bat with Matthau in "Bad News Bears." Page 28
Bergman's cameraman discusses use of light. Page 28
Vienna Philharmonic plays Webern. Page 28
Woodward and Bernstein book is reviewed. Page 45
Portrait of Graham Dance Company on TV. Page 63

Sports
Aussies call for boxing ban after ring death. Page 40
Seaver getting $225,000 and bonus; protection. Page 41
Maddox dogged by injuries to knee and pride. Page 41
Jets' new coaches give their philosophy. Page 41
Warfield signs a three-year pact with Browns. Page 41
Islanders open playoffs with feared Canucks. Page 41
U.S. to build 2d new yacht for Cup defense. Page 41
Three-year-olds 1, 2 in Big A feature race. Page 42

CORRECTIONS

Because of a mechanical failure, a map in some editions of The New York Times on Monday incorrectly indicated that Cubans were operating in, or threatening to have influence in, several nations or territories in the Red Sea and Persian Gulf area. It should have been restricted to Southern Yemen, Somalia, the Territory of Afars and Issas, the Dhoofar region of Oman and the island of Socotra.

Through an editing error, an article in The Times on Monday about the state's Bicentennial Barge wrongly attributed to Philip Johnson a statement that legislators were "furious over the escalating costs, but having built the bottom of the barge, as it were, they were too embarrassed not to build the rest of it." The statement was made by a legislative source. Also, the article wrongly stated that an outlay for air-conditioning was in the initial budget for the barge.