

News Summary and Index

NYTimes THURSDAY, APRIL 8, 1976

APR 8 1976

The Major Events of the Day

International

The Chinese leadership, moving in a deteriorating political situation, deposed Deputy Prime Minister Teng Hsiao-ping and appointed Hua Kuo-feng as Prime Minister of China and First Deputy Chairman of the Communist Party. Mr. Hua thus emerged from China's power struggle as the leading potential successor to 82-year-old Chairman Mao Tse-tung. Young people were driven through the streets of Peking in trucks, beating drums and cymbals in celebration. But strict security measures were still evident around the square where rioting acted as a catalyst for the political shake-up. [Page 1, Columns 6-8.]

Analysts in Washington and Hong Kong saw Mr. Hua's sudden elevation as an attempt at compromise rather than a clear-cut victory for the so-called "radical" faction that led the campaign against Mr. Teng. Mr. Hua was aligned with none of China's rival factions in a decade of struggles. [1:6-7.]

President Ford told Congressional leaders that the $2.2 billion in aid to Israel in the current fiscal year and the $1.8 billion proposed for 1977 were adequate for it to maintain its security. He said he would veto efforts for a $500 million increase this year. This could lead to another confrontation with Israel's supporters in Congress. [1:5.] Scientists have begun to take seriously after years of ridicule the reports of a Loch Ness monster in the depths of the Scottish lake. Recent publications from institutions such as Harvard University and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology treat last summer's evidence as plausible. The director of Harvard's Museum of Comparative Zoology has urged an intensive search. [1:3-5.]

National

The three principal contenders for the Democratic Presidential nomination converged on Pennsylvania to prepare for that state's April 27 primary, which could prove the most important of the campaign so far. Representative Morris K. Udall of Arizona, Senator Henry M. Jackson of Washington, and former Gov. Jimmy Carter of Georgia all claimed victory as they interpreted the results in New York's and Wisconsin's primaries, but impartial Democrats felt that all three had been hurt by falling short of their declared goals. [1:1.]

The Other News

International

Soviet warns against U.S. action in Lebanon. [Page 3]

Lebanon tightens security for Parliament session. [Page 3]

Paris and Bonn Socialists set up joint groups. [Page 3]

East German health care is extensive. [Page 4]

Healey sees British union chiefs on wages. [Page 7]

Nigeria cancels invitation to Kissinger. [Page 8]

British chief in Ulster affirms policy there. [Page 9]

Hua Kuo-feng, an apparent

Carter and Mr. Jackson are battling for command of the center-right constituency. [1:2.]

Knowledgeable associates of the late Howard Hughes, the eccentric billionaire, are increasingly doubtful that he left a will. It was long assumed that he had signed a will giving his estate to the nonprofit Howard Hughes Medical Institute. A Federal tax expert said more than three-quarters of the estate would go for Federal taxes if no will had been left. [1:6-7.]

The Ford Administration has decided against recommending legislation to let cable television compete against over-the-air broadcasts. Administration officials said this followed a series of meetings with those whom changes in the present law would affect, including the networks, cable operators, movie makers and sports groups. [1:6-8.]

Metropolitan

The Bank of America agreed in principle to buy $100 million in short-term New York State notes for its own portfolio this spring. The decision by the country's biggest bank gave a major boost to the state's effort to meet its critical financing needs. The negotiations had been watched closely by executives of most major banks, all of which have been asked for assistance. The state's "spring borrowing goal" is $4 billion. The executive vice president of the Bank of America said it was taking part both because it found the investment credit-worthy and because of the long-range public benefits of having New York State financially healthy. [1:4.]

Construction of Jamaica Mall, a $316 million shopping center in the heart of the blighted Jamaica business district in Queens, will begin late this year. City officials and community leaders envision this as the first major step to revive this once-flourishing hub of commerce. Mayor Beame said it would help start a wide range of activities helping both the public and private sectors of the city. [1:3.]

"I would ask you to amend my statements last night and insert the word 'lose' where I had the word 'win,'"—Representative Morris K. Udall, after late returns gave the primary victory in Wisconsin to Jimmy Carter. [1:1.]

Amusements and the Arts

Elisabeth Borgese's book on oceans reviewed. [Page 41]

The Pop Life. [Page 42]

McCartney's concerts spur

Garden sales. [Page 42]

New catalogue and show at the Guggenheim. [Page 43]

"Sparkle," a melodrama, arrives on screen. [Page 43]

Segal and Goldie Hawn in gag western. [Page 43]

Siegfried Lorenz sings "Die Winterreise." [Page 44]

Going Out Guide [Page 42]

House approves census every five years. [Page 25]

Senate panel approves grain reform bill. [Page 27]

Irregularities alleged in Wallace petitions. [Page 29]

Saving-bank checking bill is stalled in Albany. [Page 47]

General

Burger asks new ways to solve disputes. [Page 27]

Cunningham ordered to appear before jury. [Page 33]

Metropolitan Briefs. [Page 39]

State Senate returns to its birthplace. [Page 39]

90 at West Point face cheating charges. [Page 39]

West Point cadet is indicted in rape case. [Page 39]

Five men seized on prostitution charges. [Page 39]

Mexican police arrest three Mexican aides. [Page 48]

Hughes buried in simple ceremony at Houston. [Page 48]

Reilly detective is seized on gun charge. [Page 66]

Education and Welfare

Construction of Jamaica Mall, a $316 million shopping center in the heart of the blighted Jamaica business district in Queens, Teachers' strike shuts Meriden, Conn., schools. [Page 34]

Business and Financial

Dow plunges 15.43 in a sud-

sden retreat. [Page 55]

S.E.C. official is vague on bribery role. [Page 55]

I.R.S. poses 11 bribe questions to companies. [Page 55]

Bond prices rise; bill rate at 4.834 percent. [Page 55]

Abdex fiasco follows Holl-

day Inns success. [Page 55]

Albex fiasco follows Holl-

day Inns success. [Page 55]

Health and Science

Moreland panel asks Medical School district restores full instruction. [Page 34]

Teachers' strike shuts Meriden, Conn., schools. [Page 34]

Sports

Giants sign Csonka, former

Dolphin star. [Page 49]

Pesticide Kepone linked to animal cancer. [Page 28]

Quotation of the Day

"I would ask you to amend my statements last night and insert the word 'lose' where I had the word 'win,'"—Representative Morris K. Udall, after late returns gave the primary victory in Wisconsin to Jimmy Carter. [1:1.]

International

Democratic leadership, moving in a deteriorating political situation, deposed Deputy Prime Minister Teng Hsiao-ping and appointed Hua Kuo-feng as Prime Minister of China and First Deputy Chairman of the Communist Party. Mr. Hua thus emerged from China's power struggle as the leading potential successor to 82-year-old Chairman

Mao Tse-tung. Young people were driven through the streets of Peking in trucks, beating drums and cymbals in celebration. But strict security measures were still evident around the square where rioting acted as a catalyst for the political shake-up. [Page 1,

Columns 6-8.]

Analysts in Washington and Hong Kong saw Mr. Hua's sudden elevation as an attempt at compromise rather than a clear-cut victory for the so-called "radical" faction that led the campaign against Mr. Teng. Mr.

Hua was aligned with none of China's rival factions in a decade of struggles. [1:6-7.]

President Ford told Congressional leaders that the $2.2 billion in aid to Israel in the current fiscal year and the $1.8 billion proposed for 1977 were adequate for it to maintain its security. He said he would veto ef-orts for a $500 million increase this year.

This could lead to another confrontation with Israel's supporters in Congress. [1:5.]

Scientists have begun to take seriously

after years of ridicule the reports of a Loch

Ness monster in the depths of the Scottish lake. Recent publications from institutions such as Harvard University and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology treat last summer's evidence as plausible. The director of Harvard's Museum of Comparative Zoology has urged an intensive search. [1:3-5.]

Anderson confident as Reds open season. [Page 49]

Roberts leaving as master of the Masters. [Page 49]

Ort, not rejoining Bruins, to wait for offers. [Page 49]

Islanders skate on thin ice at Vancouver. [Page 49]

Patrick Day rides first 3 wins at Big A. [Page 50]

U.S. auto team withdraws from grand prix. [Page 50]

Seewagen gives his players on-court lessons. [Page 51]

People in Sports: New Yorkers toast of the town. [Page 52]

John Keats finds some science hard to swallow. [Page 37]

Anthony Lewis assays high court on privacy. [Page 37]

William Safire: What's left in the campaign? [Page 37]

James Goldsborough sees a French specter. [Page 37]

Frank Lynn on the split New York delegation. [Page 1]

Michael T. Kaufman assesses Rhodesian situation. [Page 6]

It was mistakenly reported yesterday, in a Washington dispatch of The Times, that Senator James L. Buckley had made available to other members of Congress secret summaries of addressees by Helmut Sonnenfeldt, of the State Department and by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger on relations with Europe. Corrective material appears in a dispatch on page 2.