

News Summary and Index

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 3, 1976 JUN 3, 1976

NY Times

The Other News

Quotation of the Day

"I never wanted that dam. I just knew it was dangerous, and the Government had better recay us or it will be un-American." Mrs. Ted Ard, a victim of the Idaho flood. [16:1]

International

President Hafez al-Assad seems to have withheld an all-out attack. He has two military options: to occupy Beirut, Saida and other leftist centers or to encircle them and seek their surrender under blockade. [Page 1, Columns 1-2.]

The United States expressed concern again that the conflict in Lebanon, which the United States had been unable to influence, might touch off a wider war. In Washington the State Department avoided condemning either the Syrians or their leftist opponents. Privately, officials said the Syrians might have underestimated their opposition. Their failure to impose prompt order in Lebanon and the stepped-up fighting was thought to increase the risk of intervention from Israel or from other Arab countries. [1:2.]

There are no prisoners in the Lebanese civil war. They are put to death—often slowly. In 14 months of fighting, 18,000 to 20,000 people are estimated to have died, mostly civilians caught near their homes under indiscriminate shelling. On-the-spot slayings and kidnappings on religious grounds have been daily occurrences. [1:1-2.]

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said United States relations with Chile would remain cool as long as the military Government violated what he called "elemental international standards of human rights." Attending the meeting of the Organization of American States in Santiago, the Chilean capital, he endorsed the criticism of the military Government by the human-rights commission of the O.A.S. He credited President Pinochet's Government with offering some "hopeful prospects" of reform. [1:4.]

National

President Ford appeared to be headed for solid victories over Ronald Reagan in New Jersey and Ohio in the Republican primary contests, while his challenger was running far ahead in California, where he is a former Governor. Early trends strongly suggested that with the last of the 30 primaries, their struggle for the Presidential nomination remained undecided. Samplings of voters in all three states indicated that among Demo-

The Major Events of the Day

Democrats, Jimmy Carter was winning in Ohio and New Jersey the victories he needed to turn back efforts to stop his drive for the nomination. In California, however, he was being soundly beaten by Gov. Edmund G.

Brown Jr. [1:4-8.]

President Ford announced even before the results of yesterday's primaries began coming in that he would go to Missouri on Friday to start his search for the uncommitted delegates he needs to win the Republican Presidential nomination. Missouri is one of 11 states that will select 327 delegates by state conventions rather than primary elections. His campaign aides said it was these delegates, rather than yesterday's vote, that would decide the nomination. His challenger, Ronald Reagan, is also scheduled to go to Missouri this week to ask the support of its 49-member delegation to the national convention. [1:5-6.]

A number of European health specialists are seriously questioning the wisdom of the American plan to immunize almost the entire population with a new influenza vaccine. They say the risk of adverse reactions can be justified only if the risk of a serious outbreak is substantial. Although some European Governments are stockpiling vaccine, none has considered mass vaccination. [1:3.]

Metropolitan

City Hall officials indicated that two or three agency heads might be replaced in the next 60 days as Mayor Beame presses for management changes. The shifts being considered include Alfred Eisenpreis, the Economic Development Administrator, who is said to have indicated he is looking for a job elsewhere; Jerome Hornblash, the Addiction Services Administrator, whose agency is being merged, and Roger Starr, the Housing and Development Administrator, whose disaffection with the post has become clear. Officials relate the changes to criticism by state fiscal supervisors of the Beame administration's record in introducing reforms in management. [1:3.]

Plans for a $125-per-plastic-plate picnic sponsored by the Democratic State Committee on the lawn of Gracie Mansion next Monday were canceled by Mayor Beame after Richard M. Rosenthal, the Republican state chairman, threatened to enjoin it as a violation of the law against using public buildings for party fund-raising. [1:7-8.]

U.S.-Israel walkout on P.L.O. address. [Page 2] Legalization of parties due in Spain. [Page 2]

Educator says schools can affect environment. [Page 43] Continuation of buses to private school urged. [Page 43] CUNY plan seen gaining in Albany. [Page 44]

Health and Science Educator says schools can affect environment. [Page 43] Continuation of buses to private school urged. [Page 43] CUNY plan seen gaining in Albany. [Page 44]

Sports Gonda and Muraskin gain Scarsdale final. [Page 36] Lounie Shelton, 6-8 forward, drafted by Knicks. [Page 37] Mets' Boisclair is delivering in pinch. [Page 37] Orioles draft Williams, local outfielder. [Page 37]

Editorials and Comment Decision on Orr's future in N.H.L. delayed. [Page 37] Ashe is upset by Taroczy in five sets. [Page 37] N.Y. Sires trot is won by Speedy Marsha. [Page 38] Veeck calls baseball too slow, urges changes. [Page 39]

Notes on People [Page 62] About New York [Page 62] Family/Style/Food Day [Page 34] Onion sandwiches: A memorable winnipeg. [Page 22] Kennedy plus Valentino equal magic. [Page 22]

Editorials and Letters [Page 30] James Reston: waiting for the playoffs. [Page 31] C. L. Sulzberger: playing the post-Tito game. [Page 31] John Loosbrock defends U.S. arms sales abroad. [Page 31] Fred Friendly on Landmark press freedom case. [Page 31]

News Analysis Leonard Silk on outlook for British pound. [Page 45] Leslie H. Gelb assays Carter's stand on Israel. [Page 19]

Business and Financial Dow average up by 1.88 in light trading. [Page 45] Pound rises to $1.80 before closing at $1.77. [Page 45]

Consumer Notes [Page 58] Consumer Notes [Page 58] Consumer Notes [Page 58]

Obituaries Eleanor G. Coit, labor education specialist. [Page 34]

Deaths Leonard Silk on outlook for British pound. [Page 45] Leslie H. Gelb assays Carter's stand on Israel. [Page 19]

Metropolitan Briefs [Page 35] New York cracking down on bond sales. [Page 45] Kauper will resing as anti-trust chief. [Page 45]

Consumer Notes [Page 58] Questions and answers on tuition aid. [Page 44]

Education and Welfare [Page 45] New oil terminal is opened in China. [Page 45] Swiss act to curb demand for franc. [Page 45]

Health and Science Soviet seen short of grain goal. [Page 45]

Real Estate About Real Estate: Conven-

Correction Mr. Cuddihy was a sister of

Murray Cuddihy, former president of the Catholic Big Sisters, in The Times Monday it was erroneously stated that she was a daughter of the late Thomas E. Murray, former chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission.