News Summary

NYTimes

SATURDAY, APRIL 23, 1977

APR 2 3 1977

International

"Some stabilizing" of the fighting in southern Zaire has been apparent, President Carter said at his news conference. He said that the United States Government had "no direct evidence at all" of Cuban participation in the invasion of Shaba province by Katangan exiles, but did have information that Cubans in Angola, from which the Katangans had entered Zaire, had trained the invaders. The President said that it was "extremely unlikely" that he would approve the sale of M-60 tanks to Zaire. [Page 1, Columns 2-3.]

Political violence increased in Pakistan and Prime Minister Bhutto met with his party's parliamentary caucus in a show of solidarity. At least 10 persons were reported to have been killed in Karachi by soldiers firing on demonstrators demanding the Prime Minister's resignation. At least a dozen more deaths and many injuries resulted from clashes between rival political groups or in confrontations with the police in other parts of the country. [3:1-4.

National

There was no guarantee, President Carter said, that all money collected by the Government through the taxes proposed in his energy plan would be returned to consumers through rebates and refunds. "I can't certify today that every nickel of the taxes collected will be refunded to consumers," he said at a news conference. He said that oil companies would not be allowed to profit from an expected increase in the price of gasoline and other fuels. [1:1.]

Ceilings on increases in hospital charges to be proposed by the Administration are directed at saving the Government and consumers a total of $2 billion next year. President Carter is expected Monday to send Congress legislation imposing a limit on the yearly increase in charges affecting searly every hospital in the country.

The percentage increases that hospitals would be allowed would be tied to increases in consumer prices. [1:4.]

Alex Haley faces a plagiarism suit brought by one of the nation's most respected black writers. Margaret Walker Alexander, director of the black studies department at Jackson State College in Mississippi, alleges that unspecified parts of Mr. Haley's book "Roots" were largely copied from her 1966 novel "Jubilee" about black life in Georgia in the Civil War period. She filed a copyright infringement suit in Federal district court in Manhattan. [1:1-2.]

Metropolitan

New York City got its first truly balanced budget in years. Mayor Beame presented the $13.9 billion budget to the City Council and the Board of Estimate with the statement that the city was "beginning the long climb back." The budget contains election-year bonuses, modest tax cuts, personnel increases and construction projects for the five boroughs. [1:5-6.]

About 9,400 new city employees will be hired under Mayor Beame's 1978 budget with nearly $111 million of Federal funds expected to be available under the Comprehensive Employment and TEraining Act. Most of the new employees, who must meet a series of financial tests to be eligible, are expected to be hired by the Board of Education and the Police Department. [1:5.]

Sweeping changes intended to bring more teachers from racial minorities into the school system were proposed by the New York City Board of Education to avoid the concentration of these teachers in school districts in heavily minority areas. The board was responding to a Federal charge of discriminatory personnel practices. [1:3-4.]

In Dublin, Governor Carey said members of the Irish Republican Army were "killers" and "Marxists" and that they should not get "a nickel from Irish-Americans." The Governor was in Ireland for a four-day visit. [1:2-4.]

Business/Finance

A reporting system for oil companies that President Carter proposes will show, the President said, "that unfair competitive procedures are in effect." He repeated his belief that "the antitrust laws can take care of it" and therefore there was no immediate need for legislation to break up big oil companies. [25:5-6.]

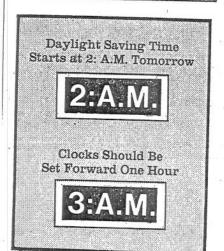

President Carter said he might veto the revamped economic-stimulus tax legislation because the Senate, ignoring the President's wishes, kept business tax breaks in the program after rejecting the $50 tax rebate for individuals that had been the program's principal provision. Mr. Carter said at his news conference that he was not in favor of extending bonuses to business when individuals had been deprived of their $50. If the business incentives are in the bill that finally passes, he said, "I'll have to decide whether I'll sign it or not." [25:4.]

The Carter Administration revised downward its projection for economic growth this year and revised upward its inflation estimate, saying that the coid weather was in part responsible. In figures submitted to Congress by Budget Director Bert Lance, the Administration changed its forecast for economic growth this year from 5.4 per-cent to 4.9 percent. The year-over-year increase in the Consumer Price Index is now estimated at 6.2 percent against the 5.1 percent that had been predicted. Mr. Lance said the Administration still expected unemployment to fall below 7 percent by the end of this year. An average rate of 6.4 percent was fore-cast for next year. [25:5-6.]

Stock prices declined sharply, mainly because investors feared a credit-tightening move by the Federal Reserve Board. Closing lower on the New York Stock Exchange were 1,098 issues, including all of the 15 most actively traded issues. Only the precious-metal group remained steady. The Dow Jones industrial average dropped 8.73 points to 927.07, bringing its total loss for the week to more than 20 points. [25:1.]

Index

International Rabin ends active service as Israeli Prime Minister Stiff penalties urged for rate violations by airlines Asian Bank members urge aid to Vietnam Morocco's King sent troops to Zaire to prevent larger war Amin arrives in Zaire, pledges aid to Mobutu World News Briefs Soviet resumes criticism of China Government/Politics Postal Service accuses A.M.A. of illegally underpaying on mail General Energy proposals hit home in Dayton Con Ed may continue using oil Around the Nation Bell supports Dayton desegregation order Rhode Island legislator fighting extradition F.A.L.N.-inquiry witness seeks to quash subpoena

Metropolitan Briefs 23
Proposal on zoning of pornography back to Planning Commission 23
Assembly bill would broaden New York's death-penalty statute 23 Engineer critically hurt as rock hits train Woman in paternity case gets an abortion 23
Ex-salesman guilty of holding stolen Hughes papers 33
What energy program means to New Yorkers 46
Health/Science
Beame budget gives $24 million to hospitals 24
Amusements/Arts
Works of 3 composers given premieres at Carnegie Recital Hall 9 José Limón company dances "Air for the G String" 9 New Directors/New Film Series at the Museum of Modern Art 10 Neville Marriner conducts Philharmonic in all-Mozart program 10
Juilliard "Falstaff" lacks subtlety 10 Natalia Makarova in season's debut with Ballet Theater
Quennell's autobiography reviewed 17
Family/Style
The shape of fashion is softly
changing 48 Legislature to tackle several bills on wife abuse 48 Living in the midst of an antique musical instrument collection 48
Obituaries
Dr. Milton Helpern, retired Chief
Medical Examiner 22
Business/Finance
World and labor issues dominate Manufacturers Hanover meeting 25
Board advances Southern goals but soft-pedals regional rivalry 25
Taiwan is raising industrial level of its economy 25
Page Page
Amer. Stocks30 Exchange Rates. 32
Business Records 26 Money 32
Corp. Affairs32 N.Y. Stocks 28
Counter List 31 Out-of-Town 32 Dividends 29 People/Business .26

Quotation of the Day

"I cannot stand here today and utter polite, meaningless words while children die in violence on this very soil. I am here to fulfill my moral responsibility, my genetic commitment to the country to which I owe my tongue and my laugh and my tears, the country which I love very much."—Governor Carey in Dublin. [46:2.]

Sports	00.2198
3 nations gain 2-0 leads in tennis	12
Loughery is rehired by Nets	. 12
It's Seattle Slew against the field	13
Pirates prevail over Mets, 4-3	13
Yankees rained out, play two today	13
76ers 109-100 victors over Celtics	13
Barber ties Stadler for golf lead	14
Roundup: Cards rout Phillies, 10-1	15
U.S. six trounces Rumania,	16
Islanders healthy for Canadiens	16
Features/Notes	in ,
Going Out Guide	12
About New York	17
Weekly News Quia	17
Notes on People	20
News Analysis
A. H. Raskin on retirement of Harry
Bridges	8
Editorials/Comment
Editorials and Letters	18
C. L. Sulzberger views Spanish	10
Communist emergence	19
Russell Baker: How to make a war	13
credible	10
Larry Barton argues for continuing	19
student loan plan	10
Larry Van Goethem remembers put-	19
	10
Elizabeth McAlister on being barred	19
from seeing her children	10
nom seeing her children	19

CORRECTION

In the review of the new musical "Annie" yesterday, the role of Molly, played by 7-year-old Danielle Brisebois, was incorrectly attributed in some editions to Shelley Bruce, 12 years old, who plays the part of Kate.