WASHINGTON, Sept. 19 — President Nixon will fly to New York next Tuesday to kick off the second tour of his re-election campaign.

Mr. Nixon, who will pay a brief visit to Texas Friday and Saturday morning, is scheduled to dedicate a new immigration facility in New York on Tuesday, make several other appearances, then fly to the West Coast on Wednesday.

According to plans, he will appear in San Francisco on Wednesday and Los Angeles on Thursday.

The White House has said that Mr. Nixon does not intend to engage in a nationwide campaign to engage in door-to-door canvassing last week, and that not one voter had raised the issue.

... Nixon's
... are tax in-
... is something
... the unqualified pledge
... new taxes that the
... House had apparently
... hoped to convey to the voters.

On Capital Hill, meanwhile, Herbert Stein, chairman of the Council Of Economic Advisers, testified before the House Ways and Means Committee in support of Mr. Nixon's proposed $250-billion ceiling on Government spending. He, too, said a tax increase was possible if spending did not stop rising.

Senator Scott, in other remarks this morning, said he had found Mr. Shriver's statement that his net worth amounted to $100,000 difficult to believe.

"I think his net worth is considerably less than that unless of course, you are talking about dollars," he said in his customary droll manner. "I imagine she must have cut his allowance," a reference to Mr. Shriver's wife, the former Eunice Kennedy.

Both Mr. Scott and Gerald R. Ford, the Republican leader in the House of Representatives said that recent indictments in the case involving the bugging of the Democratic national headquarters at the Watergate complex here had cleared "the White House and any of the responsible people" in the Nixon campaign of any wrongdoing. They added that they had carried out some door-to-door canvassing last week, and that not one voter had raised the issue.
