

Aides Add Sex to

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — A House committee staff says high officials in President Nixon's re-election campaign ordered the Watergate bugging as well as surveillance of bank accounts and love lives of Democratic congressmen and officials.

"...It appears that a Nixon committee wanted the kind of information that would enable them to disrupt Democratic politics as well as information of an intimate nature which could be used to smear the character of those working and dealing with the Democratic National Committee," the House Banking Committee staff reported yesterday.

House Republican leader Gerald Ford demanded the Banking Committee staff members be fired. Nixon's campaign committee said the report was an attempt "to rescue the sinking campaign of George McGovern."

Rep. Wright Patman (D-Tex.), the Banking Committee chairman, ordered the report made public. Patman said that it had been requested by the committee at its last meeting Oct. 12.

Quoting an unnamed source, "in which the committee staff has utmost confidence," the report said former Nixon campaign treasurer Hugh Sloan boasted to a friend at a luncheon meeting late last year that the Republicans could monitor the bank accounts of Democratic House members and senators.

Bugging Charges

The report said that the men who allegedly ran a phone tap on Democratic headquarters in the Watergate office building took a particular interest in conversations about the sex lives of everyone from high officials to secretaries.