

From story by Linda Charlton:

Mr. Ziegler also announced a number of resignations, many of which had been previously, if unofficially, reported, and the retention of several White House staff members.

Among those [who] will be continuing in their present posts are Dwight L. Chapin, deputy assistant to the President and his appointments secretary. There had been speculation about Mr. Chapin's future because of newspaper reports linking him with alleged Republican political espionage during the last year.
