Names Nixon Aide to Post

Washington

Commerce Secretary Frederick B. Dent announced yesterday he had appointed President Nixon's deputy re-election campaign director as chief of policy development in the Commerce Department.

He is Jeb Stuart Magruder, 38, who was executive director of the 1973 inaugural committee after serving as deputy campaign director of the Committee for the Re-election of the President last year.

Magruder formerly served on the White House staff.

Dent said Magruder "will be responsible for problem-solving assignments in policy areas."
