Reuss Wants Petersen Replaced By Outsider in Watergate Study

NYTimes

By WALTER RUGABER PR 24 1973 Special to The New York Times

Representative Henry S. Reuss pable of conducting a fair, imsaid today that neither Assist-partial and extensive inquiry ant Attorney General Henry E. into all aspects of this matter," Petersen nor anyone else from the spokesman said. the Justice Department should Mr. Petersen was be in charge of the Watergate investigation, suggesting that an impartial outsider be chosen

Mr. Reuss, a Wisconsin Demrency Committee, charged in a statement that Mr. Petersen had ly spacious" when he asked the banking panel has not been incommittee in a letter to call off terested in the seven men its inquiry because "widely publicized hearing at this time" who might have been their sumight imperil the trial of seven indicted conspirators.

A Justice Department

Delay Is Criticized

Delay Is Criticized

The House Banking and Currency Committee began a study of the bugging case in August at Mr. Reuss's suggestion. On Oct. 3, after receipt of Mr. Petersen's letter, the panel voted against subpoena power and effectively killed further inquiry.

In his letter, Mr. Petersen had cited court decisions against prejudicial publicity prior to trial. Also, the White House was understood to have lobbied against a pre-election inquiry and Republicans on the committee opposed it solidly.

"Hearings by the Banking and Currency Committee last fall would no more have imperild 'a successful prosecution' than would hearings by the Ervin Committee today," Mr. Reuss said, alluding to a current Senate inquiry under Senator Sam J. Ervin, Democrat of North Carolina.

Ploratory.

No Delay Anticipated

The panel has scheduled hearings for about May 15. These could be postponed if a criminal trial was imminent, sources said, or the focus of the first round of hearings could be shifted to major areas other than those in the trial. The committee appears confident of its ability to start hearings next month, and sources have stressed that there is no talk of putting them will be covered later, the sources said.

In another development today, Senator Richard S. Schweicker, Republican of Pennsylvania, said the Committee for the Re-election of the President had been "deeply involved" in the Watergate case and ought to be disbanded.

Observing that "the election has been over for nearly six months," Senator Schweiker said in Philadelphia that the re-election committee "has come

J. Ervin, Democrat of North Carolina.

he six-month delay from the end of the House inquiry until the beginning to the Senate inquiry, Mr. Reuss said in an interview, allowed more time for the "shredding of evidence" and the concoction of "perjured testimony."

Mr. Reuss called on President Nixon to remove Mr. Petersen, "or anyone else from the Department of Justice," as head of the investigation. An "outside, uncompromised, and unimpeachable citizen" should be picked, he said.

Dropping Mr. Petersen, the department said, would be Mr. Nixon and ought to residue the months," Senator Schweiker said in Philadelphia that the re-election committee "has come to stand for everything the [Republican] party is against."

Also, Senator Robert C. Byrd, Democrat of West Virginia, said President Nixon should suspend any White House officials who are about to be indicted and should "reconstitute" the White House staff.

Mr. Byrd, the assistant Democratic leader, charged that occurrence leader, charged that white House investigation of the Watergate case, had misled department said, would be Mr. Nixon and ought to resident Nixon should suspend any White House officials who are about to be indicted and should "reconstitute" the White House staff.

Mr. Byrd, the assistant Democratic leader, charged that occurrence leader, charged that white House investigation of the Watergate case, had misled Mr. Nixon and ought to resident Nixon said in Philadelphia that the re-election committee "has come to stand for everything the IRe-publican] party is against."

Also, Senator Robert C. Byrd, Democrat of West Virginia, said President Nixon should suspend any White House officials who are about to be indicted and should "reconstitute" the White House staff.

Mr. Byrd, the assistant Democratic leader, charged that white House investigation of the Watergate case, had misled Mr. Nixon and ought to resident nixon said in Philadelphia that the re-election committee "has come to stand for everything the IRe-publican] party is against."

Also, Se

WASHINGTON, April 23 - "unwarranted." He is fully ca-

Mr. Petersen was placed in when Attorney General Richard G. Kliendienst withdrew on the ocrat who is a senior member ground that it involved people of the House Banking and Cur-with which he has had "personal and professional" ties.

Mr. Reuss said that if further "orchestrated the torpedoing" of an investigation by the House committee last fall.

Mr. Reuss said that if further indictments were returned it would be improper for a Con-Petersen's reasoning was plain-ly spacious" when he asked the committee in a letter to cell ask terester.

might imperil the trial of seven indicted conspirators.

A Justice Department spokesman responded today that the Assistant Attorney General's letter had been "not only entirely proper but absolutely necessary" and that Mr. Petersen had been "concerned solely with the legal aspects."

"It [the letter] was written to assure a fair and orderly trial for those indicted and was not intended to delay or impede a Congressional inquiry into this matter at an appropriate time," the department spokesman said.

Delay Is Criticized

Senate sources said that while it was impossible to reach a judgment until actual indictionents were issued, it was unlikely that new criminal proceedings would have much long-range effect on the Congressional inquiry.

The White House is said to be eager to reduce the impact of the Ervin Committee hearings. An early and sensational trial could take some of the edge off them, but a court proceeding would probably be relatively narrow and less exploratory.

No Delay Anticipated

No Delay Anticipated