Case Belittled Weinberger

By David S. Broder Washington Post Staff Writer

*A member of the Nixon Cabministration.

*Secretary of Health, Educaespionage "pursuing political because our business as usual is vastly more important than getting involved in essentially ephemeral matters."

(Webster's Third International Dictionary defines "ephemeral" as being "of interest or value for only a short

Weinberger's breakfast press conference was the first public appearance by a Cabinet member since Mr. Nixon told a Cabinet session on Friday that he was taking personal responsibility for clear-ing up the charges against high officials of the administration and the White House

Weinberger, a political assodecades, declined to give details of the Cabinet meeting, but said: "I trust the President. He said he had no prior knowledge of the bugging, and I trust the President."

"I don't think it goes to the credibility of the President of the suggest the government."

"Begin and I think we've conducted a very orderly and effective government."

"He also rejected the suggest the suggest that it is the government." ciate of Mr. Nixon's for two decades, declined to give de-Weinberger reje conceded that "anything in politics that has to be explained gress and the country about is bad. No party welcomes a the administration's decisions series of events that has to be on domestic policy and proexplained as much as this grams.

"There is no equivalent be-

But he insisted that he had inet said yesterday that the seen no signs that the Water-Watergate case was an gate case has affected the mo-"essentially ephemeral" mat- rale of administration officials ter, which would not damage or that it would tend to the cridibility of the President weaken the President's hand or impede the work of his ad- in coming policy struggles tween the handling of matters with Congress.

tion and Welfare Caspar W. ing the period involved I was ernment," Weinberger said. Weinberger said he was not under the Hatch Act" (which "There are different individuwasting time worrying about bars federal employees from als involved and a different political activities) as budget director, Weinberger said, "I equivalence at all." don't think it [the Watergate case] rubs off on anyone in the administration who was not involved."

not involved."
"I'm trying to do my own job," he said. "It's a very big job. I know nothing about this matter. The people who managed the campaign moved in a very different orbit."

A reporter asked Weinberger if the Watergate case might become as damaging to Mr. Nixon as the "Eagleton affair" was to Sen. George McGovern in the 1972 campaign, recalling that Republicans had charged that McGovern's handling of the vice-presidential selection raised questions about his competence to man-

"I don't think it goes to the credibility of the President at all," he added.

The former budget director conceded that "anything in no

CASPAR WEINBERGER ... "business as usual" in the campaign and matters Noting twice that "all dur. of substantive conduct of gov-