Watergate Job Toll Reaches at Least 10

Associated Press

The resignations Tuesday of Egil Krogh as undersecretary of transportation brings to at least 10 the number of recent resignations and firings related to the Watergate and Ellsberg scandals. They include:

j.• Presidential chief of staff H.R. Haldeman, quit April 30.

Chief White House domestic adviser John D. Ehrlichman, quit April 30.

John W. Dean III, fired April 30.

• Acting FBI Director L. Patrick Gray III, resigned April 27.

 Attorney General Richard G. Kleindienst, resigned April 30, but remains in his post pending Senate confirmation of his designated replacement, Elliot L. Richardson. Jeb S. Magruder, for- mer Nixon campaign deputy who quit a $36,000-a-year policy job at the Commerce Department April 26.

 David_Young, a_former National Security Council_ staff_member_who_allegedly_ participated in planning the Daniel Ellsberg medical records burglary while working under Krogh. Quit without explanation or formal announcement sometime last month.

• Gordon S. Strachan, former aid to Haldeman, who quit as general counsel to the U.S. Information Agency April 30. WPOST

• Robert C. Odle; former White House aide and campaign official. Quit a $26,898a-year "management counselor" job at the Agriculture Department May 6, after five days on the job.

In addition, a number of former White House and campaign officials who are now linked to the Watergate scandal returned to private life before the recent wave of exits.

These include former presidential counselor Charles Colson, former presidential appointments secretary Dwight Chapin, former Nixon campaign chairman John N. Mitchell, former reelection campaign officials Robert C. Mardian and Frederick C. LaRue, and former Nixon campaign treasurer Hugh Sloan Jr.

Also, two of the seven men convicted in the Watergate case had worked for the Nixon campaign. G. Gordon Liddy was fired as counsel to the Nixon finance committee after he refused to answer FBI questions about the wiretapping. James W. McCord Jr. had been employed as security director for the campaign before he was arrested during the Watengate raid last June 17.
