

The Los Angeles Times prints allegations that a former White House aide, John Caulfield, twice met with Watergate conspirator James McCord to promise executive clemency in return for McCord's silence. Caulfield is now a Treasury Department law enforcement official. His wife told CBS News today that "he's out playing golf."

[Complete.]