

A Candid 'Voice of America'

Washington

The Voice of America is pulling no punches in its reporting of the Watergate scandal overseas and some members of the Senate are concerned about the candor.

An examination of news reports and commentaries broadcast over the U.S. government's official radio in the last four months showed that the sensational Watergate developments were reported openly and quickly.

The broadcasts refer unflinchingly to "the Watergate political spy scandal."

A May 10 report stated flatly: "Everyone agrees, including President Nixon, that some members of his administration have indulged in abuses of the American political system."
