HADLEY, N. Y., May 21 (UPI)—A former New York City policeman who says he was the anonymous caller who offered James McCord Jr. executive clemency said today that he had spoken with investigators for the Senate committee investigating the affair.

The former policeman, Anthony T. Ulasewicz, said, however, that he had "no connection whatsoever" with the Watergate incident or those convicted in the case. He declined to comment on why he had been questioned by the Senate investigators or to say whether he expected to testify at the public hearings in Washington.

Senate sources said Mr. Ulasewicz has been subpoenaed to testify before the Watergate committee, probably later this week.

Mr. Ulasewicz, asked by telephone last night if he had been the unidentified caller "with the New York accent" who had sought McCord's silence, replied tersely, "Yes." Later, however, he denied having confirmed that he was the caller but said, "Somebody went and said it, so it's out."

Speaking with newsmen at the door of his rural home here in Saratoga County, Mr. Ulasewicz said he had "no comment" when asked if he had been the mystery voice in the calls to McCord, the convicted Watergate burglar and conspirator.

Asked whether he had any connection at all with Watergate, Mr. Ulasewicz said he had "no connection whatsoever with the Watergate or the Watergate people involved who were arrested and subsequently convicted, etc. I never met any of them in person—that goes down the entire list."
