Watergate

Impact on Calley Case

Washington

Attorneys for First Lieutenant William L. Calley Jr. sought yesterday to obtain full details of any White House involvement in an investigation of the My Lai massacre by two figures involved in the Watergate case.

In a motion filed with the U.S. Court of Military Appeals, Calley's lawyers cited published reports that former New York policeman John J. Caulfield, and an associate, Anthony F. Ulasewicz, interviewed My Lai participants on behalf of the White House.

Caulfield and Ulasewicz, both ex-New York City police detectives, worked on undercover projects for the White House for three years beginning in 1969 — under the supervision principally of John D. Ehrlichman.

Caulfield was a member of the White House staff, his duties described as "liason" with various law enforcement agencies. Ulasewicz was paid by President Nixon's then personal attorney, Herbert W. Kalmbach.

The motion on behalf of Calley, convicted for his role in the massacre, asked the military court to order the production of any interviews, wiretaps, logs and other records obtained by Caulfield and Ulasewicz.

Calley was convicted of the March, 1968 murders of at least 22 civilians at My Lai in South Vietnam and is facing a 20-year jail term.
