WXPost JUL 2 1 1973 Nixon, Aides Believe Hearing Is Witchhunt

damn unfairly." According to four separate sources, the hostility toward the hearings is also pervasive in the White House staff, especially a m o n g former assistants to H. R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman, the deposed

One White House source

said he saw the struggle with the Senate Watergate

Committee, as not just politics but a battle for survival. "The Ervin Committee is out to destroy the Presi-dent," he said. The bitterness, according

See WATERGATE, A11, Col. 1

presidential former top aides.

By Bob Woodward and Carl Bernstein Washington Post Staff Writers

President Nixon and his top aides believe that the Senate Watergate hearings are unfair and constitute a are unfair and construct," ac-"political witchhunt," ac-White House cording to sources.

Despite apparent bipartisan and public support for the hearings and the manner in which they are being conducted, the sources said that the President in the last weeks has expressed bitterness and deep hostility toward the two-month-old proceedings.

"The President," one source said, "sees the hear-ings as an attempt to get Richard Nixon and do it just to the sources, extends to the point where some White House aides openly mock the members of the Senate committee. In a reference to Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr. (D-N.C.), the committee chair-man, one White House aide put on a Southern accent and told a reporter:

WATERGATE, From A1

"I just little ole country "I just little ole country búmpkin Sam and this nasty politics offends my pea-pick-ing heart." The aide, who holds a middle-level position in the White House, then dropped the Southern ac-cent and said that "Senator Fruin is out to slice the Ervin is out to slice the President and it offends me to see him come on so sweet when he isn't."

Another high White House aide said that Sen. Howard Baker (R-Tenn.), the committee vice chairman, "has effectively deserted the President and the resent-ment runs high over here. Five White House aides agreed to discuss the indi-vidual members of the the Watergate committee, and all said they found Sen. Loand well Weicker (R-Conn.), an outspoken critic of the White House, the most of-fensive. In several outbursts of moral indignation, Weicker has denounced the political espionage, dirty tricks, cover up and decep-tion which come under the indignation, heading of Watergate.

One White House source said that the President himself has denounced Weicker with an unflattering obscenity.

Two of the sources also criticized Sen. Edward J, Gurney (R-Fla.), who is the strongest defender of the President. "Gurney is doing the only decent job of ques-tioning," one source said, "but he is not pushing enough."

All the sources asked to remain unidentified. Several of them said that Leonard Garment and J. Fred Buzhardt, the White House attorneys representing the President on the Watergate, generally represent a so-called soft-line of cooperat-ing with the Senate Watergate committee.

One of the advocates of a hard-line in the White House said: "This is not a legal struggle as Garment and Buzhardt see it — instead it is a political struggle and we must counterattack politically and in the media.

The sources generally agreed that there is a cloud of gloom around the White House that must be elimi-nated. Avenues of possible counterattack, the sources said, could be to: • Charge that the Senate committee is blowing the Watergate out of proportion and diverting too much gov-ernmental attention to it, keeping the President from solving more important problems such as those of charges and creating an atmosphere in which the latest polls show that 35 per cent of the people believe the President had knowledge of the Watergate bugging prior to the June 17, 1972, break-in, though there has never been such an allegation by any witness.

 Blame the Watergate committee for "McCarthyism" hearing unsupported

Charge the news media with bias and sensationaliz-ing of all Watergate allegations, including the televis-ing of former presidential counsel John W. Dean's allegations against the Presi-dent by all three television networks while the Senate committee witnesses who defend the President are broadcast on only one net-

 Release a detailed de the expenditure of fense on the expenditure of fense on the expenditure of $1.3 million for the Presi-dent's homes in San Cle-mente, Calif., and Key Bis-cayne, Fla., showing that the money was spent for legiti-mate security measures. (There is a feeling in the White House that the issue White House that the issue was badly handled by the General Services Administration, which released the figures.)

Though some White House aides do not feel a counterattack should be mounted, the sources said nearly all aides feel that there is no reason the President should appear chas-tened by the Watergate.

"As the bitterness runs high," one source soid high," one source said, "there is little receptivity to the lessons of Watergate the lessons of  $W_a$  that we might learn."

Gordon Strachen's hands remain steady as the reads from his prepared statement.