

Inouye Caught In a Blooper

Washington

Immediately after he finished questioning John D. Ehrlichman yesterday afternoon, Senator Daniel K. Inouye (Dem-Hawaii), whispered aloud, "what a liar," apparently believing that his microphone was off.

The barely audible remark was picked up by Inouye's microphone and could be heard by those listening closely to the nationally televised Senate Watergate hearings.

During a break in the proceedings, Inouye denied he had said it. But when he was told his words has been picked up by his mike and recorded by UPI, Inouye said:

"Well, I guess I must have been speaking of myself."
