COLSON I. R.S. BID

Order on 'Outfit Giving the Trouble' Is Described

> By EILEEN SHANAHAN cial to The New York Time

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2 WASHINGTON, Aug. 2—Charles W. Colson, the former special counsel to the President, instructed another member of the White House staff to ask the Internal Revenue Service for the names of contributors to the National Counil of Senior Citizens, according to a deposition filed today in United District Court here.

cause "this outfit is giving us trouble." The coucil has worked for higher Social Security benefits, national health insurance and other legislation for the edlerly.

The deposition also says that The deposition also says that War. Colson ordered inquiries into the possibility of challenging the tax-exempt status of two other organizations that were in conflict with the Nixon Administration—Common Casu and the Vietnam Veterans Against the War.

David I. Shapiro, Mr. Colson's attorney, said he could not comment on the allegations because he had not seen the instructed another member of the White House staff to ask the Internal Revenue Service for the names of contributors to the National Counil of Senior Citizens, according to a deposition of filed today in United District Court here.

Mr. Colson wanted to know who the contributors were, according to the deposition, be son's attorney, said he could not remember.

Mr. Kinsey's deposition was taken in connection with a law-taken in c been instructed by Mr. Dean to cil of Senior Citizens because talk to Roger V. Barth, I.R.S. the law requires reporting, by deputy chief counsel, whenever he had a "sensitive" matter to discuss.

The Center on Corporate Re-

The Center on Corporate Responsibility has charged that Mr. Barth was the contact man for the White House in I.R.S and that itw as he who overruled agency staff technicians on the center's application for tax-exemption.

Mr. Kinsey said in his deposition that the "sensitive" tax matters he was instructed to talk to Mr. Barth about were "personal" tax matters. Some of these "personal" matters, or possibly all—the deposition did not make clear which—involved tax problems of members of the White House staff.

Mr. Kinsey said he was not able to get Mr. Colson the information he wanted on conlors it in the organization, a citizen's formation to the National Countillation reported no contributions that large.

He said the answering memo to Mr. Colson, which he prepared for Mr. Dean's signature, gave figures on the over-all mome and expenditures of the council, the only figures available. This memo was returned to Mr. Dean by Mr. Colson with the notation "we need more information," Mr. Kinsey said.

He said the answering memo to Mr. Colson, which he prepared for Mr. Dean's signature, gave figures on the over-all mome and expenditures of the council, the only figures available. This memo was returned to Mr. Dean by Mr. Colson with the notation "we need more information," Mr. Kinsey said.

He said the answering memo to Mr. Colson, which he prepared for Mr. Dean's signature, gave figures on the over-all mome and expenditures of the council, the only figures available. This memo was returned to Mr. Dean by Mr. Colson with the notation "we need more information," Mr. Kinsey said he did nothing further about the matter.

He said the answering memo to Mr. Colson, which he prepared for Mr. Dean's signature, gave figures on the over-all moome and expenditures of the council, the only figures available. This memo was returned to Mr. Colson with the notation "we need more information," Mr. Kinsey said he did nothing further about the matter.

He also said he did nothing further about the matter.

He also said he did nothing furt