WXPost

JUDGE RULES AGAINST PRESIDENT

Sirica Wants To Listen to Nine Tapes

By George Lardner Jr. Washington Post Staff Writer

U. S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica yesterday ordered President Nixon to turn over the tapes of nine conver-sations about the Watergate scandal for private judicial review. Overriding Mr. Nixon's claims of pres-idential immunity from court orders, Judge Sirica said he would listen to the tapes and determine what portions, if any, should go to the federal grand jury any, should go to the federal grand jury that subpoenaed them. The White House said flatly that Mr. Nixon "will not comply with this order." Sirica said he failed to see "any rea-son for suspending the power of courts to get evidence and rule on questions of privilege simply because it is the Presi-dent of the United States who holds the dent of the United States who holds the evidence."

In a statement issued at San Clemente, however, the White House insisted that even secret "in camera" inspection of the recordings by the judge would be "inconsistent" with the President's views on the separation of powers doctrine and on the need to preserve the "confiden-tiality of private presidential conversations Anticipating an appeal of his ruling, Sirica gave Mr. Nixon's lawyers five days to ask for its reversal in a higher court. They are widely expected to take the case to the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals here.

The White House said only that the President's attorneys were "considering the possibility of obtaining appellate re-view or how otherwise to sustain the President's position." It did not elaborate.

orate. Judge Sirica dismissed as "unpersua-sive" Mr. Nixon's claims that "the con-stitutional separation of powers ... bars compulsory court process from the White House." In a 23-page opinion, he also said he could not accept any blan-ket claims of executive privilege based on the need for presidential privacy. Instead the judge said it is up to the

Instead, the judge said, it is up to the judicial branch to determine whether those claims are justified. "The court," he said, "is simply unable to decide the question of privilege without inspecting the tapes."

In making his decision, Sirica said he had tried to "walk the middle ground between a failure to decide the ques-tion of privilege at one extreme, and a wholesale delivery of tapes to the grand wholesale delivery of tapes to the grand jury at the other. "The one," he said, "would be a breach of duty; the other, an inexcusable course of conduct." Watergate Special Prosecutor Archi-bald Cox, who demanded the nine tape recordings on behalf of the Watergate grand jury here, said through a spokes-

into

AUG 3 0 1973

alla

JUDGE JOHN J. SIRICA ... cites 1787 debate

man that he was "very pleased" with Sirica's ruling. "If appellate review is sought," Cox said, "we will do everything possible to expedite the proceedings." Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr. (R-N.C.), chair-man of the Schate Watergate commit-tee, also praised the ruling, calling it "a great victory for the search for truth." Earlier in the day, the committee asked Judge Sirica for a summary judgment to come up for a hearing, however.

See TAPES, A17, Col. 7

The tape recordings singled out in the Watergate grand jury's subpoena in-volve nine of the President's discussions about Watergate between June 20, 1972____ three days after discovery of the break-in and bugging at Democratic Party headquar-ters here—to April 1g, 1973, when ousted White House counsel John W. Dean III said he had an hour-long conversation about the case with Mr Nixon with Mr. Nixon.

APR 15

312006)

( the

(WXP

With Mr. Nixon. The existence of the tapes came to light during the Senate Watergate commit-tee's hearings last month. Cox subpoenaed them for the grand jury on July 23, and said they were crucial to its investigations of al-leged White House involve-ment in the Watergate ment in the Watergate cover-up.

The President refused to comply with the Cox sub-poena. Through his lawyers, asserted an "absolute asserted an "absolute power" to maintain the se-crecy of his conversations with top White House aides and campaign officials even though they are under grand jury investigation. Sirica, however, said that it is well established that it is well established that "the grand jury has a right to every man's evidence and that for purposes of gathering evidence, process may issue to anyone." He said it might develop that the con-versations are laced with so much legitimately privi-leged material that it would be impossible to automate any be impossible to extract any parts of them for the grand jury, but he emphasized that this is a decision for the courts to make. "Executive fiat," the "Executive fiat," the judge said, "is not the mode of resolution."

of resolution." In rejecting the White House, claims to the con-trary, Judge Sirica said that the framers of the Constitu-tion consistently showed "a general disfavor of govern-ment privileges, or at least uncontrolled privileges." He said James Madison specifically suggested dur-ing the 1787 Constitutional Convention that the framers consider "what privileges TAPES, From A1 in its favor on the commit cord any." In addition, the tapes and other documents pinckney, the South Caro-that Mr. Nixon has refused to lina delegate, observed in a produce. That' case has yet to come up for a hearing, Convention that the framers considen "what privileges ought to be allowed to the executive," but the upshot, the judge said, was that "none were deemed neces-sary, or at least that the Constitution need not" re-in a dotter documents pinckney, the South Caro-that Mr. Nixon has refused to lina delegate, observed in a produce. That' case has yet to come up for a hearing, Constitution was meant to Constitution was meant to give only "very limited" privileges to Congress and that "no privilege of this kind was intended for the executive."

Since then, Sirica said, the Supreme Court has recognized an executive privi-lege "for military secrets." But in the 1952 Reynolds decision affirming that doc-trine, the judge said, the court reserved the right to determine whether the privilege had been properly in-voked.

Quoting Chief Justice John Marshall's edict in 1803 in the case of Marbury vs. Madison, Sirica wrote, "'It is emphatically the province Îaw is . .

In reasserting that au-thority, Sinica said: "For the courts to, abdicate this role to Presidents, or to anyone else, to make each officer the judge of his own privilege, would dishonor the genius of our constitutional system and breed unbearable abuse."

The judge emphasized his intention to turn over to the grand jury any portions of the tapes that he determines not to be privileged.

the tapes that he determines not to be privileged. "To call for the tapes in camera is thus tantamonut to fully enforcing the subpoena as to any unprivileged matter," he said. Throughout the decision, Siries relied becauly on the

Throughout the decision, Sirica relied heavily on the pronouncements of Chief Justice Marshall in 1807 when he directed President Thomas Jefferson to produce documents for the treason case involving Aaron Burr. In issuing a subpoena to Jefferson, Marshall said: "The propriety of introducing any paper into a case, as testimony, must depend on the character of the paper, not on the character of the person who holds it."

Turning to the Watergate tapes, Sirica said: "The burden here then, is on the President to define exactly what it is about his office that court process commanding the production of evidence cannot reach there." He said that the claim of Mr. Nixon's lawyers that the President is not subject to the same rules as other government officials "tends to set the White House apart as a fourth branch of government."

ment." Judge Sirica acknowledged that "the court has not the physical power to enforce its order to the President," but he called this immaterial.

this immaterial. "Regardless of its physical power to enforce them, the court has a duty to issue appropriate orders," Sirica said. "In any case, the courts have always enjoyed the good faith of the executive branch... and there is no reason to suppose that the courts in this instance cannot again rely on that same good faith."