Seattle, Wash.

U.S. Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas was rushed to a hospital yesterday with what a hospital spokesman described as a "gastrointestinal illness."

Douglas' condition was stable, a hospital spokesman said.

Sam Pope, a spokesman for the University of Washington Hospital, said Douglas, 74, was taken there in an ambulance that had been summoned to the Seattleport.

Douglas recently returned from a visit to the People's Republic of China.
