

Notes on People

NYTimes SEP 22 1973

Her husband may be forbidden by court order to make speeches, said Mrs. James W. McCord Jr., wife of the convicted Watergate conspirator, but she's not. That being the case, she said, she intends to deliver non-profit lectures to church groups on the subject of "Watergate, religious freedom and freedom of speech." Her husband, ordered early this month by Federal Judge John J. Sirica to stop giving lectures and thus profiting by his "wrondoing," will escort her on her lecture dates and sit mute on the platform, Mrs. McCord said. "It'll be helpful for me to have Jim there," she explained.