

'We can succeed if we all do our part'

Editor's note: Rita Friedman is a volunteer who will be coordinating the impeachment campaign out of the Affiliate office. Anyone who wants information or materials should call her at 433-2750.

Dear ACLU MEMBER:

If Richard Nixon does not face trial before the U.S. Senate for the actions he has done as President, the American people will have no one but themselves to blame.

Public indignation, coupled with a massive letter writing campaign forced the House of Representatives to take the initial steps toward the process of impeachment. Public apathy will keep the process from reaching its final stage — impeachment. We don't get to vote on it; only the House of Representatives can impeach.

Several impeachment resolutions are currently before the House Judiciary Committee. They could remain there indefinitely. Public outcry can force the issue to the floor of the House. Pressure on each representative from the members of his or her constituency is the only means we have of forcing the issue. This can only be accomplished by inundating each representative's office with mail demanding that he take immediate action.

The flow of mail must not slow down. The pressure must continue. We must make impeachment an issue in the 1974 elections and we must keep the letter writing going right up until the House acts. Each individual must take the responsibility to write and to get as many others as possible to write.

Gallup polls, television commentaries and editorial endorsements are helpful, but the bulk of the burden lies on each of us. We can succeed if we all do our part.

Sincerely,
Rita Friedman

Letters to Congress decreasing

Spot checks on a number of representatives in Northern California show a tremendous decrease in the volume of mail received on impeachment. Should this decline continue they will have the opportunity to claim that the American people have been satisfied and no longer demand the impeachment of Richard M. Nixon
