

Notes on People

Colson Has 'Found Religion'

Charles W. Colson, the former White House aide who figures in the Watergate scandal and who is known as a tough political operative, has "found religion" in active Christianity in recent months, according to friends.

One man who knows Mr. Colson well reports "he certainly has achieved tranquility and serenity." Other friends say Mr. Colson has taken to attending prayer breakfasts regularly with Sen. Harold E. Hughes, the Iowa Democrat who recently said he would not seek reelection and devote full time to being a religious lay worker.

Because of his "serious religious experience," friends in Washington say, Mr. Colson has been able to ignore the political differences between himself, a Republican conservative, and Mr. Hughes a liberal Democrat.

Princess Anne and Capt. Mark Phillips, who were married Nov. 14, returned, smiling and suntanned, from their honeymoon in the Caribbean yesterday, to a cold and troubled Britain. They stepped from their commercial airliner, aboard which they had dined on caviar and steak, into a limousine that got caught in a traffic jam caused by a railroad workers' slowdown. When they arrived at Buckingham Palace, they found most of the miles of corridors cold and blacked out because of the Government's appeal to conserve fuel and electricity. Yes, the honeymoon was truly over.

•
Polling a sampling of 1,500 readers of Good Housekeeping, the editors of that magazine report that ranking No. 1 on its 1973 list of the "world's 10 most admired women" was Mrs. Richard M. Nixon. Ranking 10th was Mrs. Julie Nixon Eisenhower. In between on the list were Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower, Mrs. Rose Kennedy, Israeli Premier Golda Meir, Mrs. Lady Bird Johnson, Mrs. Shirley Temple Black, Patricia Neal, Princess Grace of Monaco and Dr. Joyce Brothers.

•
Richard Rountree, star of the movie and television productions of "Shaft," was divorced in Chicago from his wife, Mary Jane, from whom he had been separated for five years. Mr. Rountree will pay $35,000 a year in alimony plus support for the couple's two children . . . Jermaine Jackson, 19, a member of the popular rock group, The Jackson Five, was married in a lavish ceremony in Hollywood to Hazel Gordy, daughter of a Detroit record industry executive. The bride wore a satin gown trimmed in mink and pearls, and Mr. Jackson was resplendent in white sequin-studded tails.

•
Premier Kakuli Tanaka of Japan was under treatment for an ear inflammation and a cold in Tokyo Teishin Hospital, where he will probably remain for the rest of the week. An energetic, restless man who is surely not the most patient of patients, Mr. Tanaka is said to want to leave the hospital Thursday, in time to preside over a Cabinet meeting.

•
was called an "entirely private" visit, Mrs. Juan D. Perón, Vice President of Argengentina, went directly to the home of her husband lived in for most of the years he spent in exile. There was speculation in Madrid that Mrs. Perón had returned there to arrange for the shipment of the body of Mr. Perón's second wife, Evita, to Argentina.

•
Never mind what his fellow Connecticut Republicans say, Senator Lowell P. Weicker Jr. has nothing but the highest regard for Senator Abraham A. Ribicoff, a Democrat. Mr. Weicker criticized members of his own party, among them the Republican state chairman, J. Gaffney, Gov. Thomas J. Meskill and Representative Robert H. Steele, for saying that Mr. Ribicoff, at the age 63, is "too old" for his job.

•
"That man has everything going for him three and four times over," Mr. Weicker said of Mr. Ribicoff. "You don't have to be in the Senate very long to realize that man plays a very active role in a lot of areas." Summing up, Mr. Weicker called his fellow Republicans' criticism of Mr. Ribicoff "just ridiculous."

ALBIN KREBS