U.S. Prosecutor
Pushes Agnew
Disbarment

BALTIMORE, Jan. 3 (AP)—U.S. Attorney George Beall says the public "could be justifiably disappointed" if former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew is not disbarred.

"The public expects disbarment," said Beall, who headed the federal probe that led to Agnew's no-contest plea to a tax charge and resignation from the vice presidency.

The prosecutor said the view stemmed from his reading of the public mood and not from his personal opinions.

The Maryland State Bar Association has asked a three-judge panel to recommend that the state Court of Appeals disbar Agnew. The former vice president has asked the judges instead to suspend him from practicing law.

Happy Housewife

Associated Press

Once one of the busiest official wives on the Washington social scene, Judy Agnew is rarely seen in public now. But her secretary says she is doing beautifully and enjoying life as a housewife since her husband, Spiro T. Agnew, resigned as Vice President Oct. 10.

Mrs. Agnew cooked the Christmas turkey dinner for 17 relatives for a holiday gathering at their home in the Kenwood section in Maryland.

Although the Agnews have a maid, Mrs. Agnew likes to cook and does the family grocery shopping a couple of times a week. The two Navy stewards assigned to the Vice President left after Agnew resigned.

Mrs. Agnew did make a public appearance at a recent retirement banquet for the outgoing head of the Secret Service. In a moving tribute, she received a standing ovation from about 500 persons present when introduced by Sen. Hubert Humphrey.

Mrs. Agnew's secretary, Mary Dee Beall, says the former second lady is "doing things she hasn't done for four or five years. She's enjoying being a housewife, cooking for the family and overseeing the house."

Mrs. Agnew, 52, married 31 years, with four children and two grandchildren, has always been more inclined to home life rather than political life.
