The Harris Survey Vote for President In 1974 Is Backed

By Lou Harris

By 50 to 36 per cent, Amer-icans would favor holding a 'special election for President in 1974, if the Supreme Court found it was constitu-tional." By 53 to 37 per cent, a majority agrees with the statement that "because pub-lic confidence has been so lic confidence has been so shaken in the White House, a special election for President would clear the air and give the country a new start."

It has been suggested that such a special election might be in order if a Vice Presi-dent not elected by the endent not elected by the en tire country — such as Ger-ald Ford — were to succeed to the presidency. This pos-sibility could become a reality if President Nixon were to resign or were impeached. In that case, Ford would become President and could ask Congress to call a special election if there were judged to be no constitutional obstacles.

It is by no means a fore-gone conclusion that a Demo-crat would be elected Presicrat would be elected Presi-dent in such an election. In recent Harris Survey trial runs for the 1976 election, Ford ran slightly ahead of both Sen. Edward M. Ken-nedy and Sen. Henry M. Jack-son, two of the most fre-quently mentioned Democratic presidential prospects presidential prospects.

Recently, the Harris Survey asked a cross-section of 1,496 households across the country:

It has been suggested that it might be proper under the Constitution for Congress to call an election for President in 1974. The person elected would serve until the regular election in 1976. If the U.S. Supreme Court found it was constitutional to have a spe-cial election for President in 1974, would you favor or oppose such a step?

Nationwide	 Favor	Oppose	Not Sure
East	 . 54	30	16
Midwest	 48	39	13
South	 45	37	18
West	 53	39	8
Republican	 29	58	13
Democratic	 60	25	15
Independent	 53	34	13

To determine national feela possible presidential elecing on questions surrounding a possible presidential elec-tion this year, the cross-section was asked:

Let me read you some statements on calling a special election for President in 1974. For each, tell me if you tend to agree or disagree.

Pro-Election Such an election for President would let the people decide what direction they think the country ought to go in and who should lead American. If a special election were held, the country could then have a new President elected by the people as he should be. Because public con-fidence has been so shaken in the White House, a special elec-tion would clear the air and give the country a new start. Anti-Election Our tradition is to have a President serve for four years and that should not be changed. It is not right to have a candidate go through a whole presidential campaign and then serve only two more years. Dis- Not Agree agree Sure 63% 25% 12% 62 28 -10 53 37 10 56 35 9 serve only two more years. The Republicans won the office of President in 1972 and a Republi-can should be Pres-sident until 1976. 48 39 13 35 53 12
