WXPost

FEB 2 3 1974

Unit Gets Jaworski Ind

Doar Seeks 2d List

By Richard L. Lyons Washington Post Staff Writer

Watergate Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski has given an important assist to the House Judiciary Committee's impeachment inquiry of President Nixon by turning over an index of all materials the White House has given Jaworski's office.

The committee has felt its task of assembling data bearing on whether Mr. Nixon should be impeached for Watergate shortened if Jaworski would give it the material his office has collected over nine months. But Jaworski has re-sisted on grounds that he must keep secret material being presented to a grand

In fact, Jaworski told a Washington Post reporter last month he felt it would not even be proper for him to give the committee a list simply identifying the materials in his possession.

But special counsel John Doar told the committee at an open meeting yesterday that Jaworski sent him such a list Wednesday. By White House count, it included about 700 documents and 17 tapes. This will be used, said Doar, to draft a letter that will be sent promptly to James D. St. Clair, the President's top legal adviser, requesting White House material for the inquiry.

See JUDICIARY, A7, Col. 3

JUDICIARY, From A1

Doar said Jaworski has not yet provided him with a list mittee unanimously adopted a could be made public except rule to protect confidentiality of sensitive material, Doar Rodino also issued tight sensitive. of sensitive material, Doar said he will also renew his request that Jaworski give the committee all his documents, not just an index of them. Doar said he would try in every way possible to cooperate with the White House and Jaworski and avoid a "confrontation," while still trying to comply with the comtrying to comply with the committee's mandate for expeditious action

Doar said that if St. Clair refused to comply with his request for specific materials he would ask the committee to is-(D-N.J.) sided with Doar, saying, "This is not an ordinary situation." But he added that the committee "will not wait inordinately."

Asked by Rep. Hamilton Fish (R-N.Y.) what course the committee should take if the White House rejected or ignored a subpoena, Doar said the impeachment staff is studying that question and should be given time to do some hard thinking before making a recommendation on so "serious" a matter.

Doar had reported that in his only meeting with the President's lawyer, St. Clair had expressed concern about had expressed concern preserving confidentiality of materials if the White House gave them to the committee. The rule adopted yesterday was designed to meet this concern, but Rodino said it is not subject to any negotiation with St. Clair.

The rule provides that all materials furnished the committee from whatever source will be available at all times to the chairman and senior Republican member and their two top staff members. All other committee members of materials the White House could examine all the material has refused to give Jaworski, at certain times in a secure Doar said he will press for area without making copies. could examine all the material this second list. After the com- None of the sensitive material > curity rules for the 90-member impeachment staff, including an order that they not discuss with anyone outside the staff "either the substance or procedure of their work or that of the committee." Rodino had issued such a verbal order at the start of the inquiry.

The staff is at work on the second floor of the Congressional Hotel behind the House office buildings, where public access is barred by security guards.

would ask the committee
sue a subpoena compelling their production. But he opposed a suggestion by Rep.
Robert Drinan (D-Mass.) that a deadline be set for St. Clair to deadline be set for St. Clair to Conving or dupli-Rodino ordered that sensitive material be "segregated in a secure storage area" and cating of such documents and other things is prohibited."