Associated Press

J. Fred Buzhardt, President Nixon's White House counsel, will testify Thursday in the Senate Armed Services Committee investigation of alleged military spying on the White House.

Chairman John C. Stennis (D-Miss.) said yesterday Buzhardt will testify at a closed session and that the transcript will be made public after deletion of classified material.

Buzhardt was general counsel of the Defense Department in 1970-71 when Navy Yeoman Charles E. Radford admittedly rifled burn bags and briefcases to obtain National Security Council documents for transmission to the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.
